Great Saga Of Sea Ends Just Off Coast

By ROBERT MUSEL

FALMOUTH, Eng., Jan. 10 (UP).—The crew of the Flying Enterprise today climbed to the top of the ships funnel through wild winds and punishing seas and then plunged overboard. Within four minutes Capt. Kurt Carlsen and Mate Kenneth Dancy were picked up by the British tug Turmoil and promptly were given dry clothing and a drink of rum.

It was a heart-breaking end to one of the great stories of men against the sea, and it was the end of the Flying Enterprise, too. Shortly after Dancy and Carlsen leaped overboard the sea swept over the funnel of the freighter and the ship went down.

Carlsen and Dancy fought it out to the bitter end. The skipper had sworn to bring the Enterprise to port or stay with her until she plunged under. It was not until the vessel was 90 per cent under water that Carlsen gave up.

Then he and Dancy went up the side of the funnel and clung precariously to the top. True to the code of the sea, the skipper was the last man off. Dancy jumped first and for a few heartbeats Carlsen and the Flying Enterprise were alone again. Then the captain jumped.

Turmoil Moves In For Rescue

The Turmoil moved in for the rescue. First it picked up Carlsen and then Dancy. Sailors aboard the U.S. destroyer Willard Keith watched as the two men were expertly picked out of the water. Then the commander of the Keith sent an admiring, two-word radio message crackling to the Turmoil:

"Beautiful work."

Then another pat on the back for the Turmoil came from the British tug Dextrous, standing by:

"Good show, old boy."

'Men Fit, Well—But Exhausted'

Then the air was cleared for a moment and Capt. Dan Parker of the Turmoil got on the radio phone to report to his owners ashore:

"I'm sorry to report she has gone. She got a heavier list. The sea stove in her hatches. When I left her, just the top of the starboard side was above water. I am moving away at all speed I have because I had the good fortune to pick up Captain Carlsen and Mate Dancy.

"Please ascertain if Mrs. Dancy is at Penryn and could come to Falmouth to meet her son. We expect to land between 8 and 9 o'clock (between 3 and 4 p.m. E.S.T.).

I asked the Dextrous to stand by the Flying Enterprise and see her go down."

The Dextrous reported that the Flying Enterprise disappeared beneath the waves at 4.11 p.m. (11.11 a.m. E.S.T.).

Despite the fact that Carlsen had been aboard the listing ship for a fortnight, he was reported to be in good physical condition. The Turmoil messaged the destroyer Keith:

"Men are fit and well although they are quite exhausted. They are resting up. We are proceeding at full speed to Falmouth. Carlsen wishes to pay his respects and appreciation to the Keith, her officers and men."

Attempt To Secure New Towline

The Keith asked if Carlsen wanted to be transferred to the destroyer. The Turmoil replied:

"He does not wish to be transferred now."

Everybody who was watching on nearby ships knew that the end of the Flying Enterprise was near when she lurched over on her side. Water surged into the funnel and poured through the cracked deck. The top of the hull was the only part of the ship visible and then she plunged to the bottom.

The British Navy sent out a helicopter in a desperate attempt to take off the two heroic mariners. But the howling gale forced it to turn back.

With wind and waves rising and the barometer falling, the helpless Enterprise drifted toward the French coast.

Attempts to put aboard a new towline were made impossible by the storm, and the U.S. destroyer Willard Keith radioed:

"Possibility of passing towline next 24 hours doubtful."

Carlsen rigged a rope aboard his ship to help him and Dancy escape into the sea if the Enterprise capsized.

Lifeboats stood by on the English coast. British Royal Air Force planes equipped with lifeboats were on the alert to try to reach the Enterprise, which was 37 miles off the tip of England.

Radio Logs Record Death Struggles Of Enterprise

FALMOUTH, Jan. 10 (AP) — The messages from ship-to-ship and ship-to-shore, went this way:

3.08 p.m.—U.S. destroyer Willard Keith to Land's End radio relay station: "Flying Enterprise is going down. Making attempts to rescue them now."

3.09 p.m.—Rescue tug Turmoil to Keith: "We have just received word that the weather is too bad for the helicopter. She can't make it and is returning to base. It is up to us to take them off now."

3.10 p.m.—Land's End to Keith: "Until receipt from you that you or others have picked up the men we are taking full distress action."

3.12 p.m.—Keith to Land's End: "Plenty of ships standing by to take Carlsen and Dancy off."

3.16 p.m.—Keith to Land's End: "Flying Enterprise listing 80 degrees. Still afloat. Capt. Carlsen and Dancy standing on starboard side of deck."

3.20—Land's End to Keith: "Is lifeboat in sight?" Keith to Land's End: "No, lifeboat not in sight. Flying Enterprise now taking water down stack."

3.22—Turmoil to assisting vessel Dextrous: "Dancy and Carlsen are preparing to jump from the funnel. Stand by."

3.24—Keith to Land's End: "We see the lifeboat now."

3.26—Keith to Land's End: "Carlsen and Dancy have jumped from the funnel."

3.32—Turmoil to Keith: "We have got both off Enterprise."

3.33—Keith to Turmoil: "Congratulations."

3.38—Turmoil to Keith: "Both men are O.K. and are now in the captain's cabin changing clothes."

3.39—Turmoil to Land's End: "Flying Enterprise still afloat. Going down stern first."

3.44—Turmoil to Land's End: "Flying Enterprise completely covered in water."

4.01—Turmoil to Land's End: "Starboard bow just showing above the waves. She is very brave. Keeps going down and coming up."

4.07—Turmoil to Land's End: "She will last only two or three minutes."

4.10 — Associated Press tug Englishman to AP bureau in London: "All gone."

4.37 p.m.—Turmoil to Keith: "Both men seem fit though exhausted, and are resting up. Headed for Falmouth at full speed."

Senior Hockey Amateur Entry Rumors Denied

Complete ignorance of any move to put a Pacific Coast Seior Amateur Hockey League team in Victoria next year, was expressed today by members of the Memorial Arena commission.

Replying to a Canadian Press dispatch which stated "Chilliwack and Victoria are likely entries in the P.C.S.A.H.L. for next year," arena commission chairman Carl Pendray said: "No, I know nothing about it."

Commission member H. W. Davey, K.C., replied: "Not as far as I know. These amateur fellows seem to be forehanded with their communications to the press. We have heard nothing about it."

The C.P. report also said the Vancouver firm of "Evans, Coleman and Evans, is taking steps to provide Victoria with a senior club," to which J. V. Johnson, president of Evans, Coleman and Johnson, local building supply firm, replied: "I don't know anything about it, not even a rumor. And I'm sure we would have heard about it."

Evans, Coleman and Johnson is an affiliate of the Vancouver firm, Evans, Coleman and Evans.

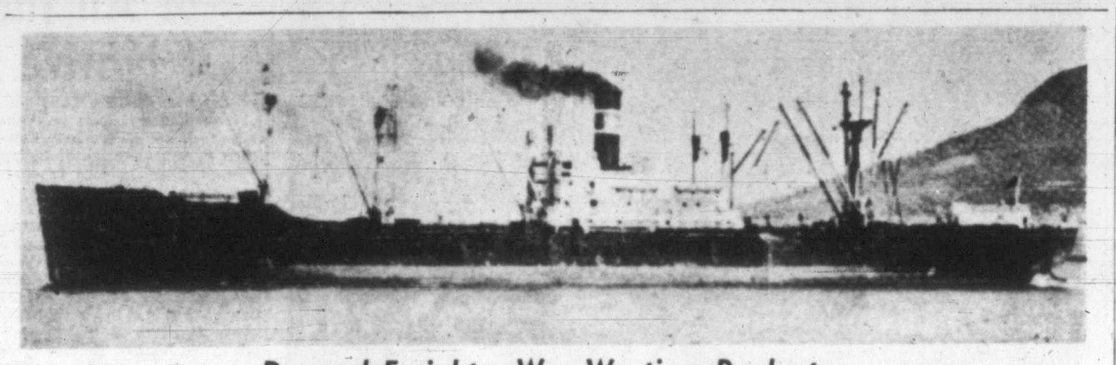
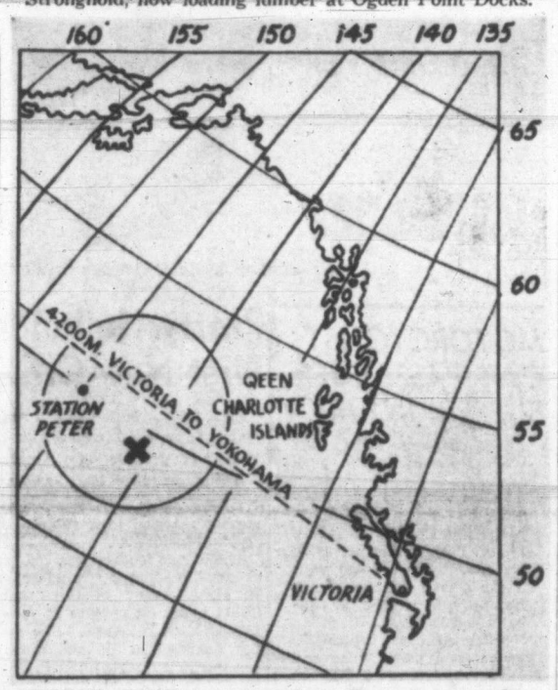
Radar Clue Raises Hopes For 45 Adrift Off Coast



Doomed Freighter Was Wartime Product

Stricken Pennsylvania is a similar ship to this U.S.-built Victory ship, of about 7,800 tons. The Victory ships, scores of which were built from 1944 through 1947, succeeded Liberty-type ships as U.S. and Canadian contributions to high-speed wartime shipbuilding. The principle difference in appearance from Liberty ships is the long, raised forecastle. Another Victory ship of identical size and design as Pennsylvania is Ss. Pacific Stronghold, now loading lumber at Ogden Point Docks.



SKETCH SHOWS position of Ss. Pennsylvania when her wireless operator closed sending with the stark words: "Leaving now." She is east and slightly south of Station Peter, from which the weathership Stonetown sped to her aid.

14 Ships, Planes In Pennsylvania Search

SEATTLE, Wash., Jan. 10 (UP).—Search for the abandoned freighter Pennsylvania and her 45 crewmen adrift in lifeboats centred today at a spot in the stormy north Pacific where the radar screen of a rescue vessel "picked up something," the Coast Guard reported.

The American freighter Cignet III radioed her radar had spotted an object 16 miles to her west. The Cignet said she was proceeding toward the spot "full steam ahead."

Meanwhile the Canadian weather frigate Stonetown arrived in the search area and "found nothing." The Stonetown said she would make a sweep effort to locate the lifeboats.

A Coast Guard flying boat which arrived at the search area before daybreak was flying a "search pattern" downwind from where the Pennsylvania last reported her position, 450 miles west of the northern end of Vancouver Island, British Columbia.

NO TRACE

She radioed: "No sign of survivors or the vessel."

The Pennsylvania's crew took to the lifeboats Wednesday when the 7,800-ton victory ship began cracking up under "mountainous seas."

In addition to the Cignet and Stonetown, four other vessels were joining the search. The Japanese freighter Kimakawa Maru was in the area.

A Coast Guard B-17 carrying "droppable" life-saving gear took off from the Port Angeles Coast Guard station to join the PBM flying boat. Two air force B-17's were waiting for better flying conditions before taking off from Sand Spit, Queen Charlotte Islands. Two navy P2V's left Whidby Island Naval Air Station, Wash., this morning.

Atmospheric conditions hampered radio communications.

The PBM reported that seas were dropping somewhat but the wind was 35 to 40 knots an hour. The barometer was rising.

The salvage tug Leslie Foss was standing by in Queen Charlotte Sound.

The States Steamship Company, of Portland, Ore., operators of the Pennsylvania, released the crew roster containing 46 names. The Pennsylvania's last message said 45 men were leaving the ship in four lifeboats.

REPORTS OF PLANE DOWN UNCONFIRMED

Meteor Suggested Cause Of Alarm

Complete mystery veils overnight reports of a plane crashing in flames into the sea near Calvert Island, on the mainland coast, 40 miles north of Cape Scott, Vancouver Island.

An R.C.A.F. Canso conducted a search this morning without success, and was recalled to Vancouver at noon.

"It might even have been a meteor," an airman said. "They have been reported before as falling aircraft."

"We don't know what we are looking for, so the search plane might as well be here," an officer said. "It will be alerted immediately if anything definite is heard."

SHIPS REPORT

Reports that started the search were:

The fishing vessel Cape Caution radioed to the Department of Transport that it saw a plane on fire flying over Hakai Pass, near Calvert Island.

Minutes later the fishboat Betty G reported seeing a plane go down in the same area.

The R.C.A.F. readied a search craft shortly after the radio reports were received via the government wireless station at Bull Harbor on Hope Island.

Meanwhile a check was made of all aircraft likely to be in the air and nothing is reported missing.

"Everything—commercial and private—that flies the 'Amber One' airway between here and Alaska has been checked," the Vancouver R.C.A.F. officer said. "If anything is even minutes overdue we hear about it, but this happened more than 12 hours ago."

"We have also accounted for aircraft not heard from for a week, that have been used on trips between logging companies and for other commercial enterprises," he said.

NONE MISSING

According to a Vancouver airman there is a possibility that an American aircraft might have gone astray between Seattle and Alaska, but the R.C.A.F. was emphatic in saying "we have heard of no aircraft missing between Skagway and San Francisco."

Commenting on the "meteor" theory, Dr. Robert M. Petrie, director of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, said it was possible for a meteor to give the impression of a falling aircraft, assuming that it fell some distance away from the observer.

"If there is no other explanation this might do," he said.

Credit Control Slightly Eased

But Dealers Still Complain; Down Payments On Automobiles Maintained At One-Half

By BURKE CAHILL, Times Business Editor

Local dealers hard hit by credit clamps in the past year greeted news of easier controls with relief but plenty of gripes still about the whole program.

General consensus seemed to be that the latest slackening of credit curbs which now permit 18 months to pay was a step in the right direction but not far enough.

There was no easing of the down payment rule which remains one-half the purchase price for new and used passenger automobiles and one-third for all other consumer goods. The minimum payments, $10 a month or $2.50 a week, also remain unchanged.

IN EFFECT MONDAY

The modifications come into effect Monday next.

Electrical and household appliances dealers, who have been squeezed perhaps hardest of all, pointed out that while bachelor-ridden Ottawa may class their lines as luxury items not so the ordinary housewife. For her money, dealers argued heatedly, they are necessities and under the original controls she was hard pressed to get them.

A greater measure of relief prevailed among the auto dealers. In this group a quick survey of what the curbs had done to business formed the basis for an estimate of one-third jump in used auto sales as a direct result of the extension of payments to 18 months.

"We're very happy about this," said one dealer, "though, of course, we'll be happier still when the whole thing is off."

CONFLICTING VIEWS

It was pointed out by the auto dealers that prices could be expected to move up for used cars as there was considerable pent-up demand. Not so, however, in the field of household appliances. Here it was suggested cautiously that heavy inventory liquidation might tend to push prices downward.

Modifications on restrictions first imposed in October, 1950, include: (1) no longer applicable to pianos and musical instruments; (2) people may rent refrigerators and washing machines for 12 months, against 6 months previously; (3) all goods, except autos and cycles, when rented for use exclusively in a business, trade or profession will no longer be subject to credit curbs.

Finance Minister Abbott, in a 350-word statement outlining the modifications, said the reason for the change is an easing in inflationary pressures. If this trend continues, he said, the restrictions will be relaxed still further.

However, he added that the underlying current of inflation is still strong and restraint in the use of credit is still essential. He could not see clearly what will happen in the future, but if inflation is intensified, rather than eased, "the government would not hesitate to tighten up again."

Though Mr. Abbott made no mention of it, various delegations representing manufacturers of automobiles and electrical appliances conferred with him in the last few months, urging relaxation in restrictions.

Many plants were forced to cut production and lay off employees as a result of reduction in business.

The restrictions still are tougher than in the United States where the down payment on consumer goods, with the exception of automobiles, is 15 per cent and time limit for payment 18 months. On automobiles the down payment is one-third and the time limit also 18 months.

Extension of the payments to 18 months, places the restrictions back to where they were before they were tightened in March, 1951.

Restrictions on rentals were tightened last year to halt attempts by the trade to by-pass regulations. If a customer held an item for more than six months on a rental basis, the government considered it in the same category as goods actually purchased and the customer had to pay regular credit payments.

However, if the customer still held the goods on a rental basis at the end of the credit term, the retailer could refund the difference between the rental and actual purchase price. Now the goods can be rented for a year and neither the retailer nor the customer will become subject to the regulations.

New B.C. Tax Deal Fixed

VANCOUVER, Jan. 10 (CP) — The Vancouver Daily Province in a dispatch from Ottawa today said details of a new arrangement between the Federal and B.C. governments on federal-provincial tax relations will likely be made in Victoria next Tuesday.

The report said Finance Minister Anscomb today completed three days of "amicable discussions" with Finance Minister Abbott on the subject but said he could not give any details. He did, however, say that a new arrangement would be announced after a meeting Tuesday with the cabinet in Victoria.

$576,000 U.B.C. Grant Promised From Ottawa

Massey Report Recommendation Brings Action To Aid Financially Embarrassed Universities

U.B.C. will receive in the next few weeks a grant of roughly $576,000 as its share in federal grants being paid to 82 Canadian universities.

The grants, recommended in the Massey Report to stave off financial disaster facing many universities, are paid on the basis of 50 cents a head on 1951 population figures.

Dr. F. T. Fairey, deputy education minister, said the grant will be paid directly to the university by Ottawa.

Grants to be paid total $7,100,000.

Quebec is the only province which has not yet come into the plan.

In Quebec a joint federal-provincial commission will be set up to determine the allocations to institutions.

No reason was given for the move. However, under the regulations, the option of a joint commission to determine which institutions would get the grants was open to any province. Quebec was the only province to resort to that method.

Victoria College will share the grant, together with Anglican Theological College and Union College of Vancouver.

RESIGNATION of J. Carl Pendray as chairman of the Memorial Arena Commission was reported today. Pendray told the Times he had tendered his resignation. It is understood that Mayor Harison has made no decision yet. The chairman's reasons for quitting the post were not given. Pendray has been chairman of the commission since last spring.

Truman Says He Thought Ike Democrat

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10 (UP). —President Truman said today that he will not relieve General Dwight D. Eisenhower in Europe unless the general requests it.

The president, in a long news conference discussion of Eisenhower's prospects as a Republican presidential candidate, said he did not think this country would do well under any Republican.

But he was high in his praise for Eisenhower, saying that until very recently he had thought the general was a Democrat. He said the general at the age of 18 had been a Democratic precinct worker in a Kansas state election.

The president said he would definitely make known his own 1952 political plans before a Republican candidate is chosen.

Mr. Truman said he assumed Eisenhower would have to ask to be relieved if he received the Republican nomination. He promised not to stand in the general's way if he is nominated.

Police Slain

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya, Jan. 10 (AP).—Nine members of a 10-man police jungle squad were killed today in a Communist ambush in north Malaya.

A government spokesman said the squad was attacked in an open area between two camps for resettled Chinese squatters. They had set out to patrol the area after Red guerrillas cut telephone wires there.

SNOW IN SPOTS

City Streets Dangerous In Early Morning

Surprise snowfalls in the district early today ushered in a spell of mixed sunshine and rain that will remain for a couple of days, weatherman William Mackie reported.

Three inches of snow fell overnight on the Malahat. More than one inch fell at Brentwood in a brief flurry just before daybreak, and a "dusting" of fine hail made city streets slippery for a few hours.

Sand scattered on the Island Highway in previous operations was sufficient to make the Four Mile and Colwood hills safe for motorists, according to the R.C.M.P.

"Winds for the next two days will be southwesterly," Mackie said, "and temperatures will range from 34 to 40 degrees. There might be a light frost tonight."

He said a cold air mass moving southward from the interior is still "lurking" around Quesnel, and might not reach the coast.

ONE WOMAN'S DAY

By NANCY HODGES

DIZZY DIVORCES

AN ITEM tucked away in a corner of a mainland paper the other day informed a waiting world that the wife of a Marylan, U.S.A., professor had been granted a divorce on the grounds of mental cruelty.

According to the news item, the cruelty consisted of his "barbaric conduct" in reading a complete detective story at a symphony concert and insisting on dancing a polka while the orchestra—not the symphony—was playing a waltz. The aggrieved wife also retailed other incidents in which her professor-spouse "embarrassed her." (Strange "Stunts").

IT CAME as a bit of a surprise to hear that a professor, who is supposedly an intellectual, would be so remiss as to prefer the crude comfort of a "whodunit" to the cultural balm of a concerto, and to want to shake a "wicked hoof" in a galloping polka when the tempo called for a leisurely waltz.

However, that doesn't intrigue me half as much as the fact that his embarassing behaviour was considered to be sufficient grounds for a divoree. It reminds us again that, in the forward march of our so-called 20th century progress, we have managed to distort out interpretation of the "for better or for worse" part of the marriage service almost out of all recognition.

ALL FOR OLEO

THAT MARYLAND CASE is by no means an isolated instance of the queer reasons for which spouses easily shed their marital vows and responsibilities, nor is it the silliest. For instance, I have heard of oleomargarine being used for many purposes—including politics—but it "took the biscuit," in my estimation, when it allowed a Wisconsin woman to grease the skids on which she slid out of her marriage.

A Mrs. Agnes Wilkins, of Madison, Wis., won a divorce because her husband wanted her to use margarine instead of butter. The judge opined that it was "cruel and inhuman"—perhaps because Wisconsin happens to be a dairy state.

POPSICLES CHARGE

IN A LIST of dizzy divorces in 1951, compiled by NEA staff correspondent Richard Kleiner, he tells of the marital misery unfolded by a woman in a Brazil, Ind., court. Her tale of woe reached its peak when she recalled, amid sobs, that her husband had told the grocer not to let her charge any more popsicles. Can you wonder that the tender-hearted judge released her from such bondage?

TATOO AND FISH-HOOKS

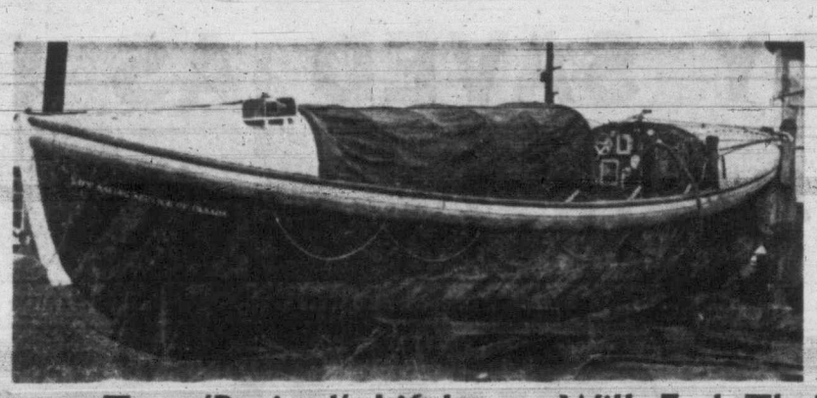
CUPID MUST HAVE blushed for shame when a Mrs. Anne Swick of Pittsburg, Penn., was asked by her husband to go in for exterior decorating. Or as he more crudely put it, he wanted her to be tattooed and join a circus, she told the sympathetic court wherein she won her release.

Romance met another snag or two in the case of the fish-hook divorce. This time it was a Sydney, Australia, judge who freed Mrs. Stanley Langdon of that city from her angling husband. Not content with using his fish-hooks to catch fish he used to sprinkle them in her bed she reported. In this case the judge decided it wasn't just mental cruelty that was involved.

GIVE AND TAKE

THESE ARE but a few samples of the reasons given for the dissolution of marriages in this western world in the last year. Unhappily, they are symptomatic of the decline in moral integrity, of the lowering of moral standards that is one of the most shocking trends of the current era of materialism.

All too often marriage is looked upon as something upon which to enter lightly, a partnership not for life but for just as long as it suits the whim of either partner. Launched on such a shaky basis, it keels over at the first hint of rough going on the sea of matrimony, instead of weathering the storm and reaching the haven of happiness that is only to be attained by both partners pulling their full weight and pooling their resources of mutual confidence and understanding. Those who don't, miss something that no dizzy divorce is ever going to make up for.



Two 'Retired' Lifeboats Will End Their Days As Single Craft

Two sea-going lifeboats, with years of honored west coast service behind them, will end their working days as one.

One of them, the former Bamfield boat, was retired from service about a year ago when her engine shot a bolt, and shook itself to pieces. The other, the Tofino craft, was replaced about six weeks ago.

The hull of the Bamfield boat is still in excellent condition, and the engine and fittings of the Tofino boat are in good shape. So T. E. Morrison, Department of Transport agent here, plans to combine the two and use the resulting craft as a tender for the depot in Victoria. Work will commence shortly.

SWEATER ART BORROWED

Not All Indian Design Of Native Authenticity

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Many of the designs on Vancouver Island's famous Cowichan sweaters are not of Indian origin but are modern in character.

That is the finding of Mrs. Barbara S. Lane, an attractive Seattle anthropologist, who spends much of her time in Victoria studying native lore. She recently wrote a paper on the Cowichan knitting industry which appeared in the "Anthropology of British Columbia," a publication put out by the Provincial Museum.

Mrs. Lane discovered that many of the designs knitted in Cowichan sweaters are derived principally from knitting, embroidery, and crochet designs which Indians copy out on graph paper from magazines and newspapers.

She said one woman got her eagle design from a beer bottle label.

She said many knitters also used the peacock as a design but did not know if it was a real or imaginary bird.

However, Mrs. Lane said many Indians still used aboriginal motifs for their designs.

She expressed the hope that all knitters would return to the true Cowichan designs instead of copying patterns in embroidery books.

The Cowichan knitting industry is becoming big business for the Indians, she points out. They constitute a major item of sale to the summer tourists on Vancouver Island and are exported for sale in the U.S., England and Switzerland, she added.

'INFORMAL' FAMILY GATHERING

Ottawa Getting Busy For Churchill Visit

OTTAWA, Jan. 10 (BUP)—The capital readied itself today for a quiet week-end visit from Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

Canadian and British officials said it would be "an informal family gathering" and stressed the fact that there was no agenda of urgent items for discussion.

Only a minimum schedule of public events was set up for the four-day visit. The doughty British leader would be free to dictate his own comings and goings most of the time. There was even hopeful speculation in the capital newspapers that he might take time out during the long week-end to paint an Ottawa winter scene.

Officials of both governments were careful to stress that Mr. Churchill's meetings with Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent and members of the Canadian cabinet were not expected to make major news.

"There will be no glamor attached to these meetings," a spokesman for the United Kingdom information office said. "It is just an informal family gathering."

There were a number of items, however, on which Canadian officials would expect reports from the British leader. One was the question of standard rifles for N.A.T.O. forces.

Unable to economically produce large numbers of rifles, Canada has suspended all purchase orders pending a choice between the new British and American weapons. The communique issued Wednesday by Churchill and President Truman said the decision was indefinitely postponed. Canadian defense leaders were expected to urge that Churchill press for a quick decision in the weeks ahead.

Canadian officials also expected Churchill to request "loans" of Canadian raw materials which Britain could trade for U.S. steel. Unless arrangements could be made to protect Canada's supply of U.S. dollars in the deal, the answer would be "no," sources here said.

Churchill and his atomic energy chief, Lord Cherwell, were expected to discuss the matter of a wider sharing of U.S. atomic secrets with Canadian officials. Lord Cherwell was due to arrive Saturday and to hold a series of independent conferences with National Research Council officials.

The British Prime Minister will spend the first two days of his visit in near-seclusion at rambling Rideau Hall, the official residence of Governor-General Viscount Alexander.

After his arrival Friday afternoon, he was scheduled to appear only Saturday noon for a brief ceremony of laying a wreath at the Peace Tower of the Parliament Buildings and for a luncheon with Commonwealth high commissioners.

Sunday he will lunch privately with Mr. St. Laurent at 24 Sussex Street, overlooking the ice-coated Ottawa River and the snowy Gatineau Hills. He will meet the cabinet Monday and report on his meetings in Washington. He will also attend a private luncheon on Parliament Hill with some cabinet members.

MOTORCYCLIST, CAR PASSENGER SUFFER INJURY

Two persons were hurt Wednesday in traffic accidents.

Taken to St. Joseph's Hospital with knee and foot injuries was Charles M. Nault, 18, of 1020 Catherine, after his motorcycle collided with a car driven by Kenneth I. Dempsey, 64 Crease, at Garbally and Douglas.

Suffering chest injuries in an accident at Superior and Menzies, Edwin Davidson, passenger in a car, driven by Hugh L. Craig, 721 Violet, was treated at Royal Jubilee Hospital and released. Driver of the car was Ontario visitor John M. Armstrong. Damage to both cars was moderate.

GIRL BREAKS ARM

Ten-year-old Louise McGee, 836 Dunsmuir, was admitted to Jubilee Hospital Wednesday night after she fell and broke her arm on the ice at Memorial Arena.

Pretty Holland-Born Woman First New Citizen Of 1952

First foreign-born Victoria resident to become a Canadian citizen in 1952 is Mrs. Gerretje Alberta Whittington, 1610 Earlstone Avenue, a young, attractive Dutch mother married to a veteran of Second World War.

The blonde mother received her citizenship papers from Judge H. H. Shandley in Citizenship Court today along with 21 other foreign-born residents. She met her husband in Holland during the war and married him in Vancouver in 1947, shortly after she arrived in Canada.

A spectator in the courtroom was 21-months-old Marlene, who watched her mother take the oath of allegiance to her new country. The baby made friendly overtures to the judge but changed her mind when she got a look from her mother.

Others who received citizenship papers were: Erik Einar William Larson, Karl Vogtli, Lum Soy, Chin Ah Jack, Choo Yee Lum, Choo Kit, Chew Ming Leong, Chue Soon Kue, Jay Jack, Ko Kum Chong, Lee Dai, Lee Chee Fung, Lee Joe Lee, Mrs. Lee Chong See, Low Lum Tim, Lum Choy, Quan Yick, Wong Jong, Wong Qon Lan and John Wong.

CONFUSED—In Abilene, Kan., Henry Jameson, president of the original Eisenhower-for-President Grass Roots Club, said today that President Truman "apparently was confused on his facts when he told a news conference in Washington that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was a Democratic precinct worker at the age of 18 here.

Ike

Jameson said Eisenhower, as a senior in high school, was one of three students from the speech class invited to address a Democratic state convention in Abilene as a part of the convention program.

"As we have been able to check the records, one of the students spoke as a Republican and one as a Democrat. Eisenhower spoke on 'the student and politics,'" Jameson, editor of the Reflector-Chronicle, related.

"As near as we can learn from the records, Eisenhower's talk was nonpartisan.

PARCHMENT—In New York, Egyptian dancer Samia Gamal says the trouble with American women is that they use too much soap and that some have skin like parchment.

Samia

"I take a bath twice every week, and the other days I sponge myself with olive oil," she related today.

"It would be better if American girls shined a little. They look like parchment sometimes."

READING—In Everett, Wash., a confessed strangler and arsonist, described by his father "as always handy with his hands," sat in his jail cell reading a Bible today as authorities prepared to prosecute him for murder.

The confessed triple-slayer, 23-year-old Harold G. Chase, received the Bible and extra food Wednesday from his father, Arthur Chase, 57.

"I don't understand how a boy as kind to kids and animals as he was could do the things he says he did," the elder Chase said after visiting his son.

Mrs. Aurora A. Quezon, her daughter and son-in-law and the others were killed while traveling to a small town in Quezon Province to dedicate a monument to the late president.

NURSEMAID — In Toronto Prime Minister Winston Churchill played nursemaid by proxy to sick children at a home in suburban Burlington today.

J. A. Gause, a former Czechoslovakian sculptor, built a 15-foot snow image of the famed British statesman, complete with the "V" sign, bowler hat and cigar.

Gause's children were confined to their house because of illness. The icy statesman was built "to amuse the children," Gause said.

Phone Bills Up Few Cents Only

Householder's Contribution About 15 Cents When New Rates Go Into Effect Monday

Home telephone subscribers in Victoria will be paying between 10 and 15 cents a month extra as the result of a ruling handed down Wednesday by the federal Board of Transport Commissioners.

The board has ruled that B.C. Telephone Company is entitled to a 4 per cent rate increase beyond the 10 per cent interim extra rate charge allowed last July. The new rate will become effective on Monday.

As a result of the board decision, a Victoria householder with a private telephone service, who has been paying $4 a month, will now pay $4.15. Subscribers on a two-party line system, who have been paying $3.25, will pay $3.35. Multi-party residence rates will be raised from $2.95 to $3.10.

Business rates in the city will be increased from $8.10 to $8.40 for those with individual service. Business places on a multi-party system will have rates increased from $5.65 to $5.85.

Large firms with one-way PBX trunks will pay an extra 30 cents which will bring their monthly phone bills to $9.45, while businesses with two-way trunks will be charged 35 cents extra, bringing the monthly rate to $11.10.

Albion and Belmont household subscribers will pay 10 cents extra if they have individual service or a two-party line phone. New rate for individual service will be $2.90 a month, while two-party line service will be $2.35.

Multi-party line customers will pay only five cents extra, $2.20 a month.

In the Colquitz exchange, individual household rates will increase from $2.90 to $3.00 monthly. Two-party line subscribers will pay $2.45 instead of $2.35, and multi-party customers will be charged $2.35 instead of $2.25.

B.C. Telephone Company applied for a 15 per cent increase in exchange rentals and a 12.42 per cent boost in long distance rates last May. In an interim order last July, the board granted an increase in exchange rentals of 10 per cent and the full amount of the requested increase in long distance.

The new judgment of the board raises the 10 per cent increase to 14 per cent and confirms the existing long distance rate.

No Break Seen In Toronto's Tram Strike

TORONTO, Jan. 10 (CP) — Toronto's street-car and bus strike today entered its seventh day with no break in sight.

The Street Railwaymen's Union (A.F.L.-T.L.C.) stood firm on its refusal to submit its wage dispute with the Toronto Transportation Commission to arbitration. The commission was equally firm in refusing to negotiate, although it was willing to have the issue arbitrated.

Mayor Allan Lamport planned to confer with both sides today in a continued effort to end the tie-up. He said Wednesday he will keep on "prodding" both union and management until a settlement is reached.

Meanwhile, the 1,300,000 residents of the Toronto area relied on emergency transportation measures to get them to work or business. Company buses or trucks, trains, taxis and private automobiles shared with car-pool members or with hitch-hikers again carried workers to and from the downtown area.

New Socred Group Headed By Worley

Ronald Worley, who quit the Liberal party several months ago, was elected president of the second Victoria group of the B.C. Social Credit League Wednesday night.

Others elected were Dr. Ronald Grant, first vice-president; Lorrace E. Kirk, second vice-president, and William Stanley, secretary-treasurer.

FALSE TEETH
That Loosen Need Not Embarrass
Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Holds false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug store.

Capt. Carlsen's Log Shows Daily Account Of Sea Epic

The day-by-day story of the Flying Enterprise, partly in Capt. Kurt Carlsen's words:

Dec. 21 — Enterprise leaves Hamburg with 10 passengers, 40 crew members and a $1,000,000 cargo of coffee, pig iron, antiques and pottery.

Dec. 25—Enterprise runs afoul of hurricane. "I was running too far north when the gale hit me and I attempted to steer south to get into traffic lanes in hope of being picked up, for my cargo had shifted and I was listing badly."

Dec. 26—"The ship cracked right across the decks. It was flinging us all over the place. The ship was breaking up and the No. 3 hold was full of water."

Dec. 27—Enterprise almost on her side wallows at mercy of gale.

Dec. 28—SOS. from the Enterprise: "Encountering severe hurricane at position 49.20 north and 17.20 west (300 miles off England). Situation grave. Have 30 degrees list and just drifting."

Dec. 29—Rescue ships move in as Enterprise list increases to 60 degrees. All 40 crew members and 10 passengers quit ship; Carlsen remains.

Dec. 30—Enterprise rides Atlantic storm; U.S. transport Gen. Greeley stands by.

Dec. 31 — Carlsen says "I'll stick to ship as long as she remains afloat. You realize how we mariners feel when we are in charge of a ship which may be worth millions."

Jan. 1—U.S. navy supply ship Golden Eagle takes over as watchdog; survivors reach port with stories of ship's ordeal in storm and praise for Carlsen.

Jan. 2—British tug Turmoil starts toward Enterprise; "Every moment here seems long, but I just keep rolling along. The problem is getting around. I have to crawl everywhere."

Jan. 3—Tug reaches side of Enterprise at nightfall; Carlsen gets first supplies; first efforts at throwing line from Turmoil fail.

Jan. 4—Seven efforts fail to get tow lines aboard, but British seaman Kenneth Dancy of Turmoil scrambles to Carlsen's side.

Jan. 5 — Turmoil gets line aboard and starts tow; destroyer Willard Keith replaces Weeks in stand-by post.

Jan. 6—Thick fog blankets Enterprise as convoy plugs towards Falmouth; Carlsen and Dancy spell each other in two-hour watches so each can get some sleep.

Jan. 7—Carlsen jubilant as convoy completes two-thirds of hazardous journey.

Jan. 8—Convoy halts 57 miles from Falmouth as new storm breaks over Enterprise; Keith says Carlsen seems concerned for first time, but skipper radios "everything okay."

Jan. 9—Towline snaps leaving freighter adrift 30 miles off rocky Cornish coast; Enterprise almost on her side as she wallows in high seas.

Jan. 10—Carlsen and Dancy saved by tug as Enterprise sinks.

VERY HAPPY

Carlsen's Wife Near Breakdown

WOODBRIDGE, N.J., Jan. 10 (AP)—"I'm very happy my husband has been rescued," Mrs. Agnes Carlsen said today, and then was unable to talk further.

The wife of Capt. Kurt Carlsen got first news of her husband's rescue from the sinking Flying Enterprise from the family minister, who read an Associated Press bulletin to her over the telephone.

Mrs. Carlsen is in strict seclusion. She has been ill several days over the plight of her husband on the hull-cracked freighter.

Rev. Kirkegaard Jensen, Danish Lutheran pastor in neighboring Perth Amboy, said after he told Mrs. Carlsen the news, she broke down in tears.

He said she was not equal to facing an interview at present.

Earlier in the day Carlsen sent a message to his wife saying, "Longing to hear from you. I am okay. Love to the children, Kurt."

'FORCED 'REPATRIATION'

Allies Charge Reds With Adding Strength

MUNSAN, Korea, Jan. 10 (AP).—Allied negotiators today accused the Communists of scheming to strengthen their forces in Korea by "forced repatriation" of prisoners of war.

Rear-Admiral R. E. Libby said the Reds are "scared to death" of giving war prisoners freedom of choice as to whether they want to be repatriated.

The United Nations again rejected the Red compromise truce supervision plan because it failed to ban construction and repair of military air fields.

As the armistice talks entered the seventh month, sub-committees on truce supervision and prisoner exchange appeared tightly deadlocked. However, both scheduled meetings for 11 a.m. Friday (9 p.m., E.S.T., Thursday) in Panmunjom.

Libby told reporters all Communist objections to the six-point Allied exchange plan could be narrowed down to four points:

1. Voluntary repatriation.
2. Trading prisoners for civilians.
3. An investigation of the satus of South Koreans believed to have been impressed into the Red armies.
4. Guarantees that prisoners who rejected repatriation or were traded for civilians would not fight again if the war resumed.

Allied and Communist negotiators are in virtual agreement on how to police a truce—except for the key issue of whether the Reds can build airfields during an armistice.

Lawyer Under Suspicion In Entry Racket

MONTREAL, Jan. 10 (CP)—A Montreal lawyer today was reported to be under surveillance in connection with the investigation by R.C.M.P. of a racket to bring immigrants to Canada illegally.

A source close to the investigation being conducted by the R.C.M.P. and Immigration Department said the lawyer is suspected of being one of the leaders of the racket.

Groups of Italians were reported to have entered the country with the help of the ring, which also supplied them with unemployment insurance books at high prices.

Police have obtained search warrants for a number of homes and at least one business establishment where they hope to locate lists of those who have dealt with the ring.

Toward The End

THE FUTURE OF THE BRITISH Columbia coalition government is not likely to be long. Both the participating parties obviously are growing tired of it.

Mr. Anscomb is continually needling his Liberal colleagues, reserves the right to walk out at any time and announces that he will certainly walk out, on grounds of high principle, before another election.

The Liberal party's decision to call a general convention not long hence indicates its dissatisfaction with present arrangements and a desire to return to straight party lines.

If the coalition dissolves an early election presumably would follow. The Liberal party could govern alone, with a frail majority in the legislature, but doubtless would not care to do so for long. In any case it has no public mandate to govern alone. The mandate of the last election was given to a coalition. when it breaks up, another mandate should be sought without delay. The chances thus seem to favor a provincial election before the end of the year.

If the coalition is nearing its end and meanwhile is under attack from ambitious politicians on both sides, its achievements should not be forgotten. By and large this has been about as able a government as we have ever had in British Columbia.

Some of its politics have been frequently criticized here and we see no reason to alter these opinions. But a government, like a man, must be judged on total performance. The total performance of the Johnson government has been remarkable.

During its period of office perhaps no province has equalled British Columbia's progress. True, the government is not responsible for British Columbia's growth, it did not make the natural resources which attract investment, did not build the new industries or bring in the new money. But assuredly it helped.

Our resources would not have been developed—on this scale or with this speed at any rate—unless investors knew that British Columbia would enjoy stable and progressive administration. Does anyone imagine that if the C.C.F. had been in office all this time, denouncing capital and threatening its expropriation, investment would have come here in its present volume?

On that score the government's record is excellent. It cannot be said, however, this is a rich man's government, interested only in the welfare of capitalists. No other provincial government in Canadian history has done so much for the common man—through the educational system, through special benefits to the aged, through the improvement of labor laws and, most of all, through its unique system of hospital insurance.

All this has cost a deal of money. In our opinion the government is spending too much or soon will be. It cannot continue to expand its budget at the present rate.

This seems to be a minority opinion so far. The government has spent no more than a majority of the people demanded, probably has spent less, and it has given us a lot for our money—unequaled social services, Mr. Carson's magnificent roads, the extension of the P.G.E. railway, a new system of forest management, expanding electrical services through its power commission and a general climate in which outsiders venture their money and British Columbians probably live better than any other Canadians.

Whatever happens this year that record will stand examination. The trouble is that few British Columbians ever pause to examine it. In the secret quarrels of politicians, in the frenzied debates on hospital insurance and in the sensationalism of some newspapers the real facts are usually overlooked.

The Case Against Sweeps

ALMOST INVARIABLY WHEN HOSpital costs are reviewed in public, letters come to this newspaper advocating sweepstakes as a means of providing revenue. The argument is simple and direct. Advocates cite the case of the Irish hospital sweeps and say that the average person would willingly buy a ticket in the hope of achieving sudden wealth or, at least, of taking that chance while giving financial support to worthwhile institutions.

That reasoning presumably underlies the decision of the Union of Manitoba Municipalities which recently passed a resolution to the Manitoba government urging it to operate a sweepstake on behalf of hospitals.

Such action was started at the provincial level a relatively short time ago in Quebec. The government there passed a law to permit lotteries. It was never brought into force because lotteries and sweepstakes are illegal under the Criminal Code.

Quebec presumably believed the federal government would amend the code to legalize the provincial lotteries. The federal government declined, and shows no indications of changing its mind on that issue.

Similarly any British Columbia or Victoria endorsement of sweepstakes would be futile. They are against the law.

Admittedly tickets are still bought and sold on the Irish sweeps here, and proponents of that means of raising money argue that substantial sums of Canadian funds are going out of the country when, given Canadian sweepstakes, they might be kept at home.

That is true. A breakdown of expenses and allocations under the Irish sweep, probably the most economically sound in the world, does, nevertheless, take some of the gilt from the gingerbread.

A study of a series of eight Irish sweeps shows that less than 18 per cent of the money paid by ticket purchasers finally reached the hospitals which the sweeps were supposed to benefit. Expenses amounted to 27.22 per cent. The gamblers, the people who bought tickets, received 54.79 per cent.

As the Winnipeg Free Press remarks: "Sweepstakes not only are poor economics for the charities they are supposed to help but poorer economics for those who take a 2,000-to-one chance, or worse, in buying tickets."

Apart from these mathematical considerations, the unaltered fact remains that sweepstakes are illegal in Canada.

Some explanation for Parliament's action in keeping them so may be seen in the intensive surveys of sweepstakes undertaken in Britain, where once they were legal and now are banned.

Reports on those studies disclose that lotteries have been rejected there on economic and moral grounds.

In 1933 one Royal Commission in Britain returned the finding, "that lotteries invited fraud, that the government should not participate in activities offensive to many of its citizens, that the psychological effect of national lotteries was bad, and that income could only be trifling."

Similar opinions are held by a large body of Canadians. Some of their arguments cannot be honestly contradicted. On economic and moral grounds, Parliament cannot be expected to change existing laws in order to legalize sweepstakes.

Selling The City Short

WHEN THE CITY'S FINANCIAL ADvisers were asked this week to present a picture of Victoria's present condition, they colored their canvas a drab grey.

City Comptroller Henry Watson gave the warning that "if the present trend continues it will only be four or five years before we are in a very unpleasant situation." Later he suggested that a continuation of the present spending policy could confront Victoria with three options: a stoppage of work, insolvency or acquisition of money from sources other than taxation and current forms of revenue. His analysis was supported by the external auditor, G. F. Dunn.

Those opinions reflect the traditional attitude of cautious financial advisers. It will be time for the citizens to worry in earnest when financial advisers are anything but cautious.

At the same time, too gloomy pictures of the city's position can have serious consequences. Victoria at the moment is selling bonds and must sell more. Advantageous deals cannot be made if the buying public feels that Victoria is on the verge of bankruptcy which, we suggest, it is not.

Let's have economy by all means. Let's be cautious. But, if we are to continue normally as a city and convince investors that our bonds are worth buying and holding, let's not overlay our sunshine with too many clouds.

Victoria's credit was seriously injured at an earlier date by a blue ruin attitude to the city's ability to meet its commitments. That is one lesson of the past from which we should profit now. A little more moderation at the City Hall is needed to establish a balance between fears, probably unjustified, of squandermania, and the destructive influence of dire financial prophecies.

Protection For The Fishing Industry

THE FULL EFFECTS OF THE North Pacific high seas fisheries pact draft, negotiated recently by Canada, the United States and Japan, will not become immediately apparent.

In the first instance, the convention cannot establish the proposed commission to carry on its work until the three governments concerned have accepted the recommendations of their respective representatives. Furthermore final signing must await ratification of the peace treaty with Japan.

The importance of the recent meetings in Japan, however, is by no means minimized by these conditions. As the result of discussions in which Victoria's cabinet member, Hon. R. W. Mayhew, minister of fisheries, presented Canada's case, three main fishing nations traditionally operating in the North Pacific, have reached a basis of accord. Previously an arrangement had existed between Canada and the United States only, Japan was not included.

The proposals do not influence Japan at the moment, since that country may fish only in waters assigned by the occupying powers on a basis of the country's actual needs. However, when Japan regains full sovereignty, it will, under provisions of the current draft, abstain from fishing salmon, halibut and herring in the waters of the North Pacific outside the territorial waters of Canada and the United States.

The plan calls for the maintenance of the fish supply and the propagation of specific species on a sustained yield basis. Provision is made for exploitation of the resource in a way which will not lead to extermination.

While three nations only are parties to the scheme, the draft provides a measure of protection against the nationals of any other country invading the North Pacific fishing grounds to the detriment of the proposed signatories. Any such invader would face the united opposition of all three.

That is a factor probably as significant as the protection which the plan furnishes against future incursions and unrestricted exploitation by the Japanese.

Canadian industries based on a vital West Coast and off-shore resource stand to benefit from an arrangement admirably handled for this country by Mr. Mayhew.

Chips Off The Old Brock

By DAVID BROCK

ON FLICKING through some week-old papers, I ran across a very curious New Year's poem printed in a mainland daily. It is called "Here We Come A-Whistling! (Eighteenth Century)." Since most of its three stanzas are badly corrupted snatches from the old carol "Here We Come A-Wassailling," it sounds rather familiar. In fact, I'd say its author had got a great deal too familiar with a fine old song. A song most of which is a good bit older than the 18th century. I also suspect that anyone who substitutes whistling for wassailling is 20th century, not 18th. Though we've had puritans with us all along.

Brock

Oddly enough, though, the newspaper version does say "Bring out some of your old ale" instead of the more usual "Bring us out a mouldy cheese" (stanza 6 in the Oxford Book of Carols, a work that all topical writers could well consult at Christmas, the New Year, and Easter . . . yes, there are Easter carols in plenty . . . the tune of Good King Wenceslas is one).

E. V. KNOX, once editor of Punch, wrote a great deal of teetotal revision of famous drinking songs. I haven't the text by me, but I vividly recall some of the rhymes. For example, you may know "I cannot eat but little meat," which was written by John Still, Bishop of Bath and Wells many hundreds of years ago:

I cannot eat but little meat,
My stomach is not good;
But I do think that I could drink
With him that wears a hood.
Though I go bare, take you no care,
I am no-thing a-cold.
I stuff my skin so full within
Of jolly good ale and old.

And so on. You can find it in the Scottish Students' Song Book, and several other collections. Well, E. V. Knox, in order to protect the young, revised this as follows:

I cannot chew but little glue,
My stomach is not good;
But I can take sultana cake
With him that wears a hood.
Though I go bare, take you no care,
I shall not need for gold;
I stuff my skin so full within
With pies like mother sold.

And then there was "Drink to me only with thine eyes," which became:

Eat all my share of apple tart
And I will none repine,
Or leave some cloves upon thy plate
And I'll not ask to dine.

I FORGET the rest of that one. I also forget the revision of John Keats' satyrs who in their mad minstrelsy were following Bacchus in search of more wine. Except that they sang:

For buns we follow Bacchus through the earth,
Great god of orangeade and piping mirth.

Oh, yes, and among many more there was a purified version of Burns who was mistaken enough to sing about John Barleycorn. Having made an honest man of himself, Honest John becomes John Griddlecake. The first stanza, and the only one that sticks in my mind, goes:

John Griddlecake is a hero bold,
And soggy too, I ween,
For if you do but bite him hard
The butter blinds your e'en.

WELL, that's enough, though I can supply other snatches. If you want any more, just come a-whistling. By the way, I am a great one for fair play and equality all round. So if "Here we come a-wassailling" has got to be "Here we come a-whistling," then I think it would be only decent to do some switching around in the opposite direction . . . to replace, so to speak, what we have taken away . . . we're not going to let the pack-rates show us up in these matters. Do you know that fine old Scottish song, "O whistle and I'll come to you, my lad?" I have changed all that. It is now "O wassail and I'll come to you, my lad." With bells on.

TIME TO THINK

WHILE dealing with that long-forgotten New Year of over a week ago, let me tell you about a broadcast I heard on New Year's Day. I have been thinking about it ever since . . . well, no, not exactly, but it keeps popping back into my head. This bloke on the radio, who is a reflective type himself, told me that on New Year's Eve or New Year's Day I should sit down and think hard. I should assess myself and my past and future and my children and my job and heaven knows what. He didn't actually submit that I should go down and assess the underpinnings of my ramshackle old house, but it was only a 15-minute talk and maybe he had no time for details. Now, I respect this man, and agree with him on nearly all topics. But I honestly can't think of a worse time than early January for sitting down and getting pensive, or even for getting prudent. Or for getting gloomy, either.

JUST consider (if you'll allow me to become reflective myself). Here you have some chaps with hangovers, and some with flu, and most of them with indigestion, and all of them broke. They've got a lot of bills coming up, and the old grind coming up. Even if they try to assess their kids, what are they going to get? They're going to be assessing them at a time when these poor little devils are bored, spoilt, tired, and slightly unwell. That's a fine time to ask a man to sit down for some real old-fashioned cogitation.

First thing you know, you'll have old Jack with a crying-jag, and old Joe joining some crackpot religion, and old Jim cutting his throat. No. Early January may be a time for writing letters and paying bills and all that. You could even do some moderate thinking about organizing your holiday better next time. But as for pulling down the old thinking-cap so far that it gives you claustrophobia and half-suffocates you . . . I think not. There is no time of year when a man has less stamina or worse judgment.

POWER RATES

As a shareholder in B.C.E. preferred shares bearing 4 per cent interest, I feel entitled to protest most strongly any increase in rates to consumers.

However, if the B.C.E. Company will be kind enough to increase the rate of interest on the 4 per cent shares to 4½ per cent or 4¾ per cent, I shall be more able to meet the rising costs with equanimity!

HOSPITALITY

We are told that very few families in Victoria responded to the request for hospitality on Christmas and New Year's days for displaced persons from Europe.

Those of us who entertained some of them were richly rewarded and will continue to enjoy the experience of making other new friends. Let us welcome them in our homes before we plan a more public reception.

ELECTION QUALIFICATIONS

As the question regarding my property qualifications to sit on the Saanich council has been raised in the press, to dispel any doubt in the minds of the citizens of Saanich, I wish to state that I have for some years been the registered owner of no less than five different parcels of property simultaneously, free of all encumbrances, with all taxes and assessments paid up to date.

The apparent reason for the doubt on the part of some people appears to be due to the fact that one piece of property did have an encumbrance during the past six months and there seems to be a technicality as to whether or not this parcel should have been included on my nomination papers. I have taken this matter up with several legal authorities and have been assured that it in no way disqualifies me from holding office.

I would like to take this opportunity of thanking the electors of Saanich for their support.

TAXES AND RATES

The B.C. Electric Co. seeks to transfer $850,000 of its new income tax assessment to the consumers by increasing our electricity bills by 25 per cent. Income tax is a recognized business expense and it is rightly included in the cost of goods and services to the public. Whether the present application is warranted is a matter for accountants for we, the ordinary consumers, have not the necessary data on which to reach a sound conclusion.

There is, however, one point on which we need have no doubt at all. It is that if this $850,000 ever reaches our electricity bills it will be subject to the 3 per cent sales tax and we shall have to fork out a further $25,500 a year to the provincial government. Whether the public is prepared to swallow such a glaring example of the tax-on-tax principle remains to be seen.

In the public interest I would suggest that those groups who are going to oppose the company's application should, at the same time, approach the provincial government in this matter of the sales tax.

BIBLICAL ECONOMICS

Judging by your editorial, "Solomon and the Dollar," the apologists of the system of debt and usury are now seeking illustrations from the past to impress on the more gullible the inevitability of inflation.

It seems awkward to remember that the creation of bank credit of astronomical proportions is of comparatively recent origin, and also that the actions of the apologists must meet with complete approbation from the benificiaries of this system who are well able to reward them.

The editorial demonstrates the mythcopeic faculty which even makes use of the gnostic heresies of King Solomon's day.

You quote with approval an article by Dr. Cyril James which conveys the idea that even in Solomon's time the problem of inflation was insoluble—an outcome of the working of the inexorable laws of divine dispensation.

Now Dr. James is a product of that school of Hellenic deductive thinking known as The London School of Economics which commences to reason from the assumption that the system is all right, only humans are at fault. From this is deducted some astounding conclusions which generally insist the system ought to work despite the fact it does not, except of course for the benefit of its few promoters.

According to Graetz, Solomon considered himself the state and levied heavy taxes on the people, compelling many to be bondsmen. He reportedly practiced magic and had power over spirits and demons which he could invoke or dismiss at will in furtherance of his ends. Here he showed he was an adept in producing the myths on which the abacadabra of modern finance and economics are founded.

His relations with Hiram to which you refer showed his "business" acumen in securing contracts, even letting Hiram's generosity go unrecognized. Hiram eventually spots Joabert, Solomon's secretary, eavesdropping. Joabert is seized as a spy, pardoned and given a sword to defend himself. The impression left is that cheating, spying and concealing the truth are "attributes" which wen practised will yield a good financial return.

Possibly in taking from the past to illustrate the present you unwittingly performed a service to your readers.

Eisenhower Enters The Fray

By JOSEPH and STEWART ALSOP
From Washington

THE backers of General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower have got their man in the race—but not, it must be added, in quite the way they had hoped. They wanted the General to become a fighting candidate later on. Instead, they have got an avowed, available and firmly Republican candidate now, but at the price of his aloofness from the dust and sweat of the pre-convention struggle.

Stewart

The story that ended with Gen. Eisenhower's Monday statement indicating the attitude above outlined, casts considerable light on the status of his candidacy. It begins at the time when his backers organized themselves under the chairmanship of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, when they soon discovered three unpleasant facts.

First, the rival organization of Sen. Robert A. Taft, which is certainly the largest, the most powerful and the most plentifully financed pre-convention organization ever seen in this country, had been doing a considerably more effective job than was supposed.

Second, the professional Republican politicians all over the country hankered so strongly for one of their own kind, symbolized by Sen. Taft, that they were prepared to take considerable risks in choosing the nominee.

Third, President Truman's progressive loss of strength, owing to the corruption issue and other factors, was persuading the professional Republican politicians that the risk of nominating Sen. Taft might not be so great after all. Thus the prospective Postmasters and Collectors of Internal Revenue were more and more inclined to follow their fancy into the Taft camp.

The impact of these three facts in turn drove the Eisenhower backers to alter their strategy. They had intended to refrain from forcing the General's hand, but now they were impelled to.

Simultaneously, the Democratic scheme to enter Gen. Eisenhower's name in the New Hampshire primary, imposed a sort of time deadline on the Eisenhower men. Senators Lodge and Duff therefore talked at great length with the General on the trans-Atlantic telephone. The outcome of these conversations was the Lodge statement on Sunday, asserting the General's Republicanism and availability.

Even then, however, it was still hoped that the General might ultimately go beyond confirming the Lodge statement, entering the campaign in person.

Joseph

Eisenhower has not exactly foreclosed the possibility of a great declaration of principle on this pattern. It would not be inconsistent for him to make one or more such speeches. It is an enormous gain for his backers that his willingness to accept the nomination is now unequivocally on the record. It is also very likely that the storm clouds which are again gathering on the world horizon will also stimulate an Eisenhower surge.

In short, the fight is on in earnest. Yet in honesty it must be recorded that Gen. Eisenhower's decision to remain aloof from the pre-convention struggle is a setback, just as his positive announcement of availability is a gain.

Ups And Downs

By BRIAN TOBIN

"RIGHT from the first," said the Elevator Man, "the friends of Henry Q. Tagge knew what was going to happen. But they were powerless to help. They had to stand helplessly by as they saw the disease progress to its inevitable end. For Tagge was a victim of that little-publicized but still lethal modern disease—queueitis. It shows itself, of course, in an uncontrollable urge to stand in line—a helpless compulsion that grows until the sorry patient literally stands himself to death. It was Tagge's misfortune that he did not realize the seriousness of the complaint until it was too late. Had he sought treatment earlier he might still have been saved. Going down!

Tobin

"The trouble was," said the Elevator Man, "Tagge treated it all so lightly at first. 'Q is my middle name,' he used to joke, as he took his place in a row of patient waiters. Other times, as friends passed him standing on the sidewalk, he would call, 'Always at the tag end,' and smile that slow, weary smile that is one of the earliest symptoms of the disease. Tagge's malady progressed rapidly, after the initial stages. From standing in queues waiting for things he wanted—buses, drivers' licenses, theatre tickets and the like—he went on to lining up for things he didn't want. He would be seen at nylon sales, home permanent demonstrations, house auctions and other events in which he had no normal interest. From this, he reached the final stage, in which at any time of the day or night he could be found in queues without the faintest knowledge of what was being dispensed at the head of the line. He would stand for hours, wearing his patient smile, eyes slightly glazed, shuffling slowly forward as the crowd edged to the front. Finally arrived at the wicket or gate or desk that was the goal of the line of standees he would look vacantly about, nod pleasantly to the person in charge, turn on his heel and walk back to the end of the line to start all over again. That was the beginning of the end. Lower main!

"The final tragedy," said the Elevator Man, "came with little warning. Tagge was in a line-up of men applying for a night watchman's job at the gas works. His arches were broken, his shoulders permanently slumped, his lacklustre eyes fixed immovably on the neck of the man in front of him. Suddenly he slumped to the pavement. He gave a last pitiful little jerk of his limbs, trying to inch himself forward to the wicket, and expired. His funeral was a large one and attended by many sorrowing friends. There was only one slight hitch in the otherwise excellent arrangements. Traffic was heavy and the procession had to line up for some time at the cemetery gates."

Joint Army Exercise In Far North

SILVER CREEK, Y.T., Jan. 10 (BUP)—Some 450 Canadian and American soldiers were preparing today for the largest and longest military training exercise yet carried out in Canada's frozen northland.

The exercise will test the endurance of men and machines under severe winter conditions and spring thaws in Canada's first line of defense. It starts Jan. 20.

Dubbed "Eager Beaver," the exercise will see 150 Canadian and 300 United States army engineers carry out an airfield construction program, snow compaction studies, the construction of field defenses, demolition projects and other problems along the Alaska Highway, 1,400 air miles northwest of Edmonton, Alta.

Vast quantities of special equipment have been flown and trucked into the area. Movement of the force of 150 Canadian sappers to the camp on the shores of Kluane Lake was completed Wednesday and the final airlift of American soldiers was made today.

Lt.-Col. H. D. Brown, U.S. Army Engineer Corps, will direct the exercise, with Maj. E. D. Taylor, Royal Canadian Engineers, Ottawa, as second in command.

The troops taking part in the exercise are drawn from Canada's 59th Independent Field Squadron, R.C.E., and the United States 361st Engineer Construction Battalion.

Navy Won It But How Close Can You Come?

Merchants Just Miss; Seven-Ups, Army Win

Army 3, Civil Service 2
Navy 3, Merchants 2
Seven-Ups 5, Individuals 3

By DENNY BOYD

One tiny inch was the margin that sent Victoria Merchants down to an upset 3-2 defeat at the hands of a powerful Navy squad in the Commercial Hockey League program at Memorial Arena Wednesday night.

That was how close Merchants' playing coach Bill Jensen came to scoring the tying goal with less than 30 seconds left in the game.

Trailing by the odd goal and two minutes left, Merchants put on a hair-raising pressure attack in an all-out attempt to tie the score.

Stan Spark, Navy's rotund netminder, saw more rubber in those two minutes than a foreman in a tire factory. He kicked out a hail of shots and on one particular save, got his feet tangled at the side of the net. The puck came out to Jensen and he let fly with a smoking back-hander that had Spark beaten.

However, to the eternanl gratitude of the Navy partisans, the puck missed the open corner.

EARLY LEAD

Navy hit the score-sheet first. Russ McKay scoring on a rebound while Merchants were one man short in the second period.

Taking a perfect pass from Roy Bird in the corner, Ray Shedlowski made it 2-0 at 14.20 of the second.

Six and one half minutes into the final frame, Walt Jensen trapped a pass from Len Elphick and beat Spark with a hard drive that caught the top of the net. Ivan Wood got that one back at 17.39 with the prettiest goal of the night. Stealing the puck from a Merchant player at the blue-line, Wood skated in on Ab Ellis in the Merchants' citadel, faked beautifully and slipped the puck past Ellis' prostrate form.

With two minutes left, Spark made his only mistake, fanning on an easy shot by Ab Taylor. After that goal Merchants turned on the heat but to no avail.

SOLDIERS MOVE UP

Army, still playing with a skeleton crew, held off a spirited third-period rally by Civil Service to win 3-2 and take fourth spot.

The soldiers roared into a commanding 3-0 lead on goals by Rod Hallam, Roy White and Stew Vary but saw the lead almost dissipate when Servants put on one of their strongest spurts of the season in an effort to get back on the victory trail.

Jack Quinn and Fred McColl scored for Civil Service within five and one-half minutes of the last frame.

VIDUALS BLOW AGAIN

For the third time in three games, Individuals took a lead and then lost it. This time it was Seven-Ups who came back to take a 5-3 verdict and stretch their first-place lead to five points.

Ron Bremner scored to give Seven-Ups a 1-0 lead but Individuals came back with a fast brace to take a 2-1 edge. Arnold Elliott scored on a hard shot that bounced in off a defenseman and Bob Fowler slapped in a rolling puck on the edge of the crease.

Thirty-seven seconds into the second period, Ed Varga tied it up but Cleaners again forged ahead on Fred Delaney's goal. Stan Coburn evened it for the Bottlers and it was even threes going into the third. Seven-Ups proved stronger in the stretch and Bremner and Varga scored the winning goals.

Marines Call Williams; May Not Pass Physical

By BILL KING

BOSTON, Jan. 10 (AP).—Ted Williams, baseball's top salaried slugger, has been recalled by the United States Marines and, if physically fit, probably will be lost to Boston Red Sox until he reaches the comparative old age of 35.

That $100,000-plus performer is one of several hundred former marine flyers being called back as replacements for Korean veterans due active service releases.

Reports from marine headquarters in Washington were that Williams, now 33, will report for a physical examination April 2. If found fit, he will go on active duty May 2 for at least 17 months. That would take him through most of the coming American League season and all of 1953.

READY TO GO

"If Uncle Sam wants me, I'm ready. I'm not any different than the next fellow," Williams phoned general manager Joe Cronin from his Florida Everglades fishing retreat last night.

"But I'll go through all of the spring training and I'll stay with the club and await further orders," Williams added.

STATUS DOUBTFUL

But Williams' chances of passing the marines' strict physical tests for its flyers are considered dubious in that service's local circles.

Ted fractured the head of the radius bone in his left elbow during the 1950 all-star game and the resulting surgery has hampered that arm's extension and mobility ever since. He still requires the constant attention of theraputists.

Hereabouts, many recalled reservists, especially flyers, have been rejected for similar handicaps.

Williams missed three seasons, from 1943 through 1945, because of service in the Second World War. He qualified as a marine flyer and served as an instructor at Pearl Harbor.

SALARY DIP

Washington reported that Williams was being recalled as a captain, a rank that would entitle him to about $600 a month compensation, including allowances for dependents and previous service. He is married and the father of a small daughter.

Since he joined the Red Sox in 193 Williams, the majors' last .400 hitter—.406 in 1941—is reputed to have received more than $600,000 from owner Tom Yawkey in 10 seasons. His top salary was $125,000 in 1950, when, due to his accident, he dropped 26 points to his .317 battling low. He was only a point higher last season.

'MIRACLE' IF TED COULD RETURN, SAYS JOE CRONIN

BOSTON, Jan. 10 (UP).—General manager Joe Cronin of the Boston Red Sox gave his answer today to the question the entire baseball world was asking:

"Does Ted Williams' recall to the Marine Corps mean the end of his career?"

He said that it would require "a miracle" for Williams to come back in 1954 but "Ted might do it."

"It is hard to visualize Ted coming out of the service and returning as a star at the age of 36," Cronin said. "The odds are obviously heavily against him."

"But," Cronin continued, thrusting out his classic Irish jaw, "If Ted Williams sets his mind to doing something, he'll do it."

Cronin said Ted's sudden call might force the rich Boston club, which had no warning, to make a player deal and said he will confer with manager Lou Boudreau about a possible trade in Sarasoto, Fla., next week.

But he added sadly, "It is obvious that you cannot replace a man like Williams."

IT'S MY VIEW

By BILL WALKER, Sports Editor

Naturally the aim of every Montreal chatel is to someday play for the Canadiens, and when Roger Leger said last week that Andy Hebenton was deserving of that honor, Roger wasn't passing the time of day.

For when Roger expresses an opinion, be it about a player, good or bad, you can bet your last hockey puck that Roger has thought the matter over carefully before making such a statement.

Walker

And when Roger singled out Hebenton as capable of making the grade in the N.H.L. he couldn't have handed the accolade to a more deserving fellow.

For Andy Hebenton is just that. He is quiet, self-effacing, never one to belittle a teammate's ability, but above all he is a hockey player's player.

He gives his all in every game and is one of the most improved players on this year's club. In truth he is a bright flame in an otherwise dull stack of embers left smoldering from last April.

That the 22-year-old Winnipeg product has improved tremendously under Roger's tutelage is born out in the league scoring figures. Last year, for example, when Andy was sidelined part of the season with an appendectomy, he still found time to accumulate 32 points on 16 goals and 16 assists in 56 games.

This season, he already has 24 goals and 15 assists to his credit in only 36 games and at his present rate of production could conceivably pass Eddie Mazur's 43-goal output of last season.

It is probably not generally known that the Cougars send a detailed report of every Montreal farm hand to Frank Selke at various times during the season. And right now Hebenton's name heads all the rest in value received.

It must also be noted that the Hebenton in action for the Cougars this year is a different Hebenton that patrolled the right boards last year. For last year Hebenton was one of the cleanest players on the club and didn't even have a penalty for the first two months of the campaign. This year, however, Andy has displayed a new aggressiveness born out of a will to make good, and for a time was the most penalized player on the club.

Packing 185 pounds on his stocky frame, is termed a "rough skater," powerfully strong, and blessed with a terrific team spirit, Andy should go a long way up the Canadiens' ladder. Roger doesn't make many mistakes when it comes to assessing a player's potentialities.

However, Andy, like any true sport, gives the credit to his mates, without whom no player can be made to look like a champion.

CANUCKS ACQUIRE NEW GOALIE

VANCOUVER, Jan. 10 (CP)—Vancouver Canucks, a club that takes in and ejects players faster than a revolving door, came up with a new goalkeeper today.

Coach Hugh Currie said he would use Nick Pidsodny Friday night against New Westminster Royals, leaders of the Pacific Coast Hockey League. Pidsodny has worked the last two weeks with Buffalo of the American League but has played most of the season for Sydney Millionaires of the Maritime Major League. Pidsodny will replace Red McAtee.

Earlier it had been announced that Orval Lavell had joined the Canucks from Providence of the A.H.L.

Andrews To Play Against Hoop Proteges

Can youth triumph over experience? This is the question that many spectators will be asking themselves when Vic High Totems and a team composed of all-time cage greats meet at the High School Friday night.

For the old-timers will be such notables as Art and Chuck Chapman, Busher Jackson, Alex and Ian McKeachie, Ollie Goldsmith, Porky Andrews, Gordie Patterson, Hank Rowe, Tommy Forbes, Doug Peden and Vic Dale.

One interesting sidelight of the game will be the fact that Totems will be facing their own coach, Porky Andrews.

Coach Andrews reports "the Totems are shaping up well" but then "the old-timers aren't exactly decrepid either."

With such expert opinions concerning both teams flowing so freely much student interest has been attracted to the game which promises to be a bang-up contest.

Novices Pass Skating Tests

Successful candidates were: Susan Stokes, Lorna Chisholm, Donna Lennox, Betty Mae King, Ann Vickers, Arlee Gale, Robin Grant, Doreen Wells, Marilyn McElmoyle, Judy Taylor, David Moore, Patsy Patterson, Eleanor Wickett and Claudia Pomeroy.

$10,000 MEET AWAY FRIDAY

Stan Leonard Entrant In Crosby Pro-Amateur

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif., Jan. 10 (AP).—Bing Crosby's personal golfing party, the $10,000 national pro-amateur tournament he sponsors for charity every year, gets under way Friday.

Proceeds go to polio research, veterans' hospitals, youth centres and other institutions.

The 54-hole links derby, which stacks up with any show of its kind anywhere, will see a galaxy of stars footing it over three courses in as many days.

Among the 172 performers will be some of the finest professionals in the land; many crack amateurs and notables from the movies, baseball and the music world, who range hackers to fair golfers.

This is the tournament which annually lures one time kingpin Byron Nelson out of semi-retirement. Lord Byron surprised a great field a year ago by winning the pro division with a total of 209. His amateur partner, as usual, will be Ed Lowery, San Francisco businessman.

Last year's pro-amateur winning team, bandleader Phil Harris and veteran campaigner E. J. (Dutch) Harrison will try to retain their laurels.

Crooner Crosby, whose five tournaments here have netted charity $95,000, won't play in the gala affair for which he puts up all the cash and prizes.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver provides the international touch, with Tom Dwyer of San Francisco as his amateur partner.

FOUR GAMES ON B.C. TOUR

Fijian Ruggers May Play Here

By BILL HOLLAND

Negotiations are being carried out by the B.C. Rugby Union to bring a Fijian rugby team to tour B.C. within the next few months.

Cost of the venture as far as the B.C.R.U. is concerned will probably be in the vicinity of $2,000.

The touring squad will play four games, three in Vancouver and one here. The Victoria Rugby Union fully approves of the plan and has authorized the B.C.R.U. to proceed with negotiations for a game here.

Possibility that the Victoria Rugby Union will form a second division league also has been mooted.

Crusaders appear to be the only club that cannot field a second team, but the other three squads are ready to start playing. A tentative league schedule will be drawn up next week.

SATURDAY GAMES

Two games will be played at Macdonald Park Saturday. On the upper field Crusaders will go against J.B.A.A., while on the lower pitch Victoria College will meet Oak Bay Wanderers.

James Bay and College are currently tied for second place while Crusaders are in the lead and Wanderers in the cellar.

In strip for the Bays will be newcomers Ken Higgs, Norm Kawalyk and Fred Ranson. Game times are 2.30.

Jubilee Cabs defeated Morgan & Tucker, 29-21, and Dowell's Cartage downed B.C. Airlines by the same score to remain in a second-place deadlock in the junior division of the Victoria Table Tennis Association at the association headquarters at the Club Sirocco Tcesday.

Outstanding players were Ray Leason of Morgan & Tucker and Wayne Chew of B.C. Airlines, who both won 10 games without a defeat, and Jack Wood, with nine wins and one loss.

RICHARD OUT FOR A MONTH

SUDBURY, Ont., Jan. 10 (CP) — Maurice (Rocket) Richard, the National Hockey League's top goal-getter, will be lost to the Montreal Canadiens for at least a month, sidelined with stomach troubles.

The announcement was made here Wednesday night by Montreal coach Dick Irvin after an exhibition game in which Richard made brief appearances in two periods and then became violently sick to his stomach.

Bisons In Tie With Cincy

Pittsburgh Hornets went further ahead of the pack in the American Hockey League's western division Wednesday night, subduing the hapless Syracuse Warriors, 7-2, to show a 10-point lead over the second-place Cleveland Indians.

In the eastern division, Providence Reds strengthened their hold on second place and at the same time came within seven points of the leading Hershey Bears by slapping a 7-2 defeat on the Bears.

In the only other game played, Buffalo Bisons and Cincinnati Mohawks played a 5-5 tie.

The Bisons were ahead on successive scores by Lorne Davis, Cal Mackay, Gord Pennell and Vern Kaiser. The Mohawks retaliated with tallies by Bill Wylie, Ivan Irwin, Jack McLeod, Ian MacKintosh and Hern Dickenson. Mackay's second goal ended the scoring.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—Joe Giardello, 155½, Philadelphia, and Sol Di Martino, 151¾, New Haven, Conn., drew (10).

BOSTON ADDS PLAYERS

Leafs Regain Second Place

With all the talk of trades circulating through the six-city National Hockey League, sports writers of late have been wondering out loud just how long Toronto Maple Leafs would keep their red-headed centre Cal Gardner. The free-skating Winnipeg native just hasn't been clicking.

However, last night the ex-Ranger dispelled any thought of a trade for a while as he scored on his former teammates midway through the second period and gave the Smythe-men a 2-1 victory over the fourth-place New Yorkers.

Although the goal spoiled the game for 13,801 Gotham fans, it gave the Leafs two big points and moved them back into sole possession of second place. They are two points in front of Montreal and 10 behind the league-leading Detroit Red Wings.

Gardner's goal came at 12.52 of the middle session after Max Bentley had given the Leafs a 1-0 lead at 13.47 of the first period. Hi Buller, who was in the penalty box when Bentley scored, evened it up for the Rangers just two minutes later.

The last half of the contest was rather slow as the Toronto team played it safe against the always aggressive and powerful Blueshirts.

BRUINS GET AID

In Boston, Art Ross has sent his players scurrying for cover by calling up Real Chevrefils and Leo Labine from their Hershey American Hockey League farm club. He also traded rookie defenseman Jim Morrison to Toronto for Maple Leaf winger Fleming Mackell. Morrison temporarily goes to the Leafs' Pittsburgh A.H.L. farm club.

Ross also shipped forwards Adam Brown and Lorne Ferguson to Hershey and sent along Pentti Lund to skate himself back into condition. Lund is still recovering from a recent serious eye injury.

In Chevrefils, the second highest scorer in the A.H.L., and his linemate Labine, the Bruins may have an answer to their fifth-place blues.

NHL SUMMARY

Leaf Players In Only Gain

Toronto Maple Leafs' 2-1 victory over New York Rangers Wednesday night made little change in the standings of the leaders in the National Hockey League's individual scoring race. But it did put Sid Smith and Ted Kennedy of Toronto within one point of fourth place.

Shields Flays Sedgman Gift

NEW YORK, Jan. 10 (AP).—Frank Shields, captain of the U.S. Davis Cup tennis team, said Wednesday that he felt the intent of the amateur rules is being broken by the Australian wedding present fund for Frank Sedgman.

At a press conference, Shields said the fund being raised by Australian papers for Sedgman's fiancee, Jean Spence, may be legal but "it is taking advantage of a loophole in the rules. I believe the intent of the amateur rule is being broken."

Button Match Billed Sunday

Bob Fleming and John Merriman will meet Ted Colgate and Bill Court in the defense of their city senior golf button at the Victoria Golf Club Sunday.

The button matches have been curtailed because of Fleming's recent illness. The foursome will tee off at 12.30.

ST. LOUIS—Cesar Brion, 198¾, Buenos Aires, outpointed Wesbury Bascom, 181, East St. Louis, Ill. (10).

INVITATIONS OUT FOR HOCKEY NIGHT

The Victoria Minor Hockey Association has sent invitations to bantam and midget teams in Nanaimo, Kerrisdale and Duke of Connaught High School to attend the association's hockey night here Jan. 28.

Tickets for the special night are now on sale and may be obtained at Eaton's or from any member of the Victoria Minor Hockey Association.

Something New In Sport

One of the most unusual acts ever performed on ice will be seen here with Ice Cycles of 1952. It's badminton on ice by stars Hugh Forgie and Stig Larson. Their act came about six years ago when Canadian-born Forgie had gained an international reputation on the badminton courts. Ice Cycles producer John H. Harris asked Forgie if he could put the game on ice—that's where Stig Larson came in. The pair practised for a year until they had their act perfected. Now it is one of the outstanding numbers with the show.

MacKenzie Sees P.C.H.L. Rising

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C., Jan. 10 (CP).—Kenney MacKenzie, owner of New Westminster Royals of the Pacific Coast Hockey League, says the league is closer to major status than it realizes.

Coley Hall, owner of Vancouver Canucks, is already planning toward that end. He is in the east trying to line up a farm system for his team.

MacKenzie and Hall both say they believe the American Hockey League's days are numbered. The A.H.L. of late has been experiencing some extremely small gates.

But, to let MacKenzie do the talking:

"I prophesied years ago that hockey would swing back into Canada and I have that feeling more than ever now with what's happening in the east.

"It is simply not their game down there, outside of a few historic centres, such as Detroit, Seattle, Tacoma, and, I still say, Portland. I used to include Boston but that city is disappointing me.

"If the American League drops out, and there is a strong possibility it may, and if we can get big enough rinks, say 8,000 to 10,000 capacity, here in this league, we will undoubtedly go major league.

"In fact, Edmonton and Calgary have rinks big enough now. These cities now are outdrawing Chicago and Boston. We on the coast would have to catch up.

"I am sure, too, that the National Hockey League would welcome the elevation of the P.C.H.L. to major status.

"Their eyes are on the dollar and, remember, the most bitter competition in our hockey history came when the Stanley Cup was competed for between the east and the west.

"When Vancouver had only a fraction of its present population, the professionals played to crowds of 11,000 in the old arena. You can't tell me there isn't the fan potential out here, and on the prairies, to support major league hockey."

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 10 (UP)—Veteran heavyweight Cesar Brion of Argentina moved up a notch or two in the challengers ranks today after hammering out a unanimous 10-round decision over previously unbeaten Wesbury Bascom of East St. Louis, Ill.

FLYERS RESPONSIBLE

Rockets Get Jarred Twice

Two kinds of flyers shook Tacoma Rockets Wednesday.

First, the transcontinental flyer on which they were traveling from Saskatoon to Edmonton was involved in a collision. The players were only shaken up.

Then Edmonton Flyers shook them 4-2 in a Pacific Coast Hockey League game to move three points ahead of Victoria Cougars.

It wasn't clear whether coach Frank Currie of Edmonton had handled the Flyers for the last time. It was to be his final game as coach but a petition signed by all players asking that he be reinstated has been handed to the Edmonton management.

A meeting of the Edmonton Exhibition Association, which sponsors the Flyers, will be held to discuss the petition.

The game was held up an hour and 15 minutes in starting by Tacoma's late arrival from Saskatoon, caused by the train wreck.

Pat Coburn led Edmonton with two goals. Eldor Thomas and Ching Johnson scored the other two. Wayne Brown and Chuck MacDonald netted for Tacoma.

Tacoma moves on for a date with Calgary Stampeders tonight, only league game scheduled.

PIANO PERFECTION?

Solomon Rouses Large Crowd To Enthusiasm

By AUDREY St. D. JOHNSON

A common assumption has existed a long time to the effect that nothing man does or creates is perfect. It is an assumption that is accepted unquestionably until one comes up against an experience like Wednesday night's Solomon recital.

Then you begin to wonder: Just what is perfection? Something at which no variation of personal taste can cavil? As for me, if this was not perfection, at least I am certain that I shall never hear anything nearer in the realm of piano artistry.

Without speaking a word from beginning to end; without benefit of a striking appearance or manner or any touch of flamboyance, Solomon embraced his audience and communed with it, swayed it to shouting enthusiasm by the sheer wizardy of his art. It was a large audience, too, the largest seen in the Royal Theatre for many months. Solomon and the Steinway were forced to share the stage with it, but the artist who had played in all sorts of odd corners of London right through the blitz was not in the least perturbed.

Any evaluation of Solomon's pianism must begin by acknowledging in the superb technique which allows him complete relaxation and the freedom to concentrate every faculty on the meaning and spirit of the music.

The two Bach preludes and fugues — from Book II in C minor and Book I in G major — were brilliantly intellectual, sculptured in exquisite tones and poised and polished phrases.

A striking feature, and I believe a significant one, of Solomon's performance is the feeling that one is brought closer to the composer than ever before, which is surely the highest function of the interpretive artist.

One felt in the Mozart D Major Sonata, for instance, the Austrian's delicate humor, his ineffable sweetness and ingenuous spirit. The Beethoven F Minor (Appassionata), on the other hand, was rugged, moody, introspective.

The contrast in dynamic range between these two works was remarkable and still another texture of tone was revealed in the Debussy "Cathedral Engloutie." A whispering, exceedingly remore pianissimo was experienced here.

The brilliant, incisive Ravel Toccata and dramatic poetry of Chopin were included in the final group. Encores were the Chopin Valse in E minor, a Brahms Intermezzo and a charming "Music Box."

O'Hara Archbishop Of Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 10 (AP) —Most Rev. John Francis O'Hara, 63, Wednesday was installed as archbishop of the Roman Catholic See of Philadelphia in the high-domed Cathedral of St. Peter and St. Paul. He is the fifth to hold the title in the Philadelphia archdiocese that includes more than 1,000,000 Catholics in Eastern Pennsylvania, and succeeds Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, who died last May.

Mickey Hopes Wife No. 3 Becomes 4

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 10 (AP)—Mickey Rooney says he hopes that ex-wife No. 3—Actress Martha Vickers—will become wife No. 4.

Miss Vickers obtained an interlocutory decree last Sept. 24, charging cruelty. Under California law, the divorce does not become final for a year.

"For our baby's sake, I hope we can straighten out our difficulties, the pint-sized actor said Tuesday through his studio. "We are still trying to work it out. Nothing is impossible, you know."

The baby, Ted, was born April 12 last.

Rooney said he and Miss Vickers are "very good friends" and go out together.

Missing Vessel Seized By Reds

HELSINKI, Finland, Jan. 10 (Reuters) — A West German cargo ship missing for more than a week was seized by Russian patrol boats in Soviet-Estonian territorial waters, her captain said when she arrived at Kotka, South Finland, Wednesday.

The 327-ton ship Elbing IV left Stockholm Dec. 28 without cargo. Capt. Ferdinand Koehler said he drifted into Soviet waters in heavy storms, and was allowed to leave Estonian waters Tuesday night.

Still Space For Travelers On 'Y' Outing

There is still plenty of accommodation left for Y.M.C.A. skating and skiing trips later this month.

The skating party, which is going to Nanaimo Friday, Jan. 18, has room for 10 more passengers on the chartered bus. The party will leave Victoria at 6 and arrive at Nanaimo at 8. They will spend three hours skating at the Nanaimo Civic Arena and then return home.

On the following Friday a party of 25 is scheduled to leave Victoria for Forbidden Plateau to spend the week-end skiing at the winter resort.

The party will arrive at the lodge late Friday night, spend all Saturday and Sunday skiing and then return to Victoria Sunday night.

There are still vacancies left, and latest word from Forbidden Plateau is that snow conditions are excellent. Anyone wishing additional information on either the skating or skiing trips should contact Y.M.C.A.'s Bob Morrison.

MARITIME DELICACY

Quahaugs or hard-shelled clams in Canadian Atlantic waters normally require six to eight years to reach marketable size.

IN HOLLYWOOD

Mona Freeman Will Part Company With Paramount

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 8 (AP)—Mona Freeman has arranged a parting with Paramount, her studio for eight years. One of her reasons: She can't grow up there.

Mona is all of 25 years and the mother of a four-year-old girl, but she claims that the studio hasn't been able to think of her as a grown-up.

"In my latest picture, I played a 14-year-old," she said. "I did three pictures as the teen-aged trouble-maker in the 'Dear Ruth' series. Yet when other studios borrow me for pictures, it has always been for grown-up roles."

Mona said she discussed her decision with another player who will soon depart after a long association with Paramount—Alan Ladd.

"Alan had the same trouble," she commented. "He made a hit in a picture called 'This Gun for Hire.' Since then, he has been thrown into just about everything that comes along.

Mona's plans for the future are undecided. She has had several offers, including one of a term contract at M-G-M. "But that wouldn't help me any," she added. "M-G-M has every type of girl you can imagine. I would simply get lost in the shuffle."

PYTHON HAS TEMPERAMENT

LONDON, Jan. 10 (AP)—Pet shop owner P. E. Child was seized around the neck by a 15-foot python and nearly strangled Wednesday while posing for photographers.

Two men pulled the reptile's coils loose just as Child was turning a deep shade of blue.

Revived by a shot of whisky, Child was stuffing the python back in its cage when it whipped round and bit him on the thumb.

Mrs. John Lamb must tell her little boy his daddy is dead.

Tears And Toil Mother's Heavy Burden

By ELIZABETH FORBES

The tiny, brown shingled house, huddled under moss-coated oak trees on the road to Witty's Lagoon, looked lonely and more than a little scared, under the grey, dripping January sky.

A few chickens and a brown bantam hen scratched in the mud near the kitchen door. A rabbit poked its head inquiringly through the slats of its small wooden hutch.

A black dog growled softly as photographer Bill Halkett and I approached, then wagged his tail and settled on the veranda as the door opened and Mrs. John Lamb asked us in.

A wood fire burned in the kitchen stove. "It gets pretty cold if I don't keep it going," Mrs. Lamb said in a tired, expressionless voice.

There was no carpet on the living room floor—but it was swept and clean. On a couch in one corner baby Billy was asleep under a piece of blanket. The table, where the family eats, was at the far end of the room. A circulating heater filled the centre space. A cardboard carton held some well-worn children's toys.

And in one corner there was a Christmas tree.

It stood just arm-length high, perfectly shaped and decorated.

A star—a bit worn—was at the top. Ropes of tinsel were draped around the branches. The baubles—what there were of them—were all "placed," not "put," where they would shine and glitter to the best advantage.

Mrs. Lamb stood beside the tree as she talked; fingered the tinsel; touched a bright colored ball.

"I never had anything to do with decorating our Christmas trees," she told us with tears in her eyes. "He always did it. He liked doing it, so I left it to him. He spent a whole evening decorating this one just before Christmas."

She shook her head in a dazed way.

"Now I've got to take it down. And I just don't seem to be able to get at it."

"The girls will help me," she said, "Virginia and Lois. They are good girls!"

Virginia and Lois attend Belmont Junior High School.

"I worry about Virginia," Mrs. Lamb said, "she wears a hearing aid. It is hard for her to get lessons among so many others. Her sister helps her at home but it is very hard."

Asked if she thought some of the money being collected in the Lamb fund might be used to help Virginia, Mrs. Lamb said she didn't know.

"They tell me it will be to pay the bills," she said. "It is good of so many people to want to help. I cannot believe it. I wish John knew."

The tears came again as she told of her husband working in Island sawmills since leaving the navy, of the lay-off last summer; and that he was not called back when the men went to work.

"He always liked the land," she said, "so he decided then he would farm this place. Perhaps go to farm school under the V.L.A. "He said this place was just right," she went on, "near a beach for the children, near a good road, not far from town."

I asked her if she thought she would stay in the little brown shingled house, and she shook her head again.

Her family—and all her relatives—live in and near Winnipeg, she said. Perhaps in time she would take the children and go there.

"But I can't think now," she said. "There is too much. Too much!"

"Too much" includes getting up every morning before 6 since her husband was killed, lighting fires, feeding the chickens, the rabbits and the cow, getting the girls ready for school, Billy dressed and ready to go across to a neighbor for the morning, catching a bus for Victoria. And then to the hospital where the older son Brian is fighting to live after going over the cliff with his father in the family car.

Then back to the bus and home—to milk the cow, get the children's dinner and get them off to bed.

"I am tired, but I keep going," she said. "I do not want to stop. Then I think."

Her eyes brightened momentarily as she told of the improvement she finds in Brian this week.

"He will get better," she said.

Then her face settled back into its expressionless mould again. "Today he asked me why 'daddy' did not come to see him. So now I must find a way to tell him daddy is dead."

"How do you tell a little boy that?" she said.

Egg prices in Victoria are still holding, despite a price drop of 6 cents in Vancouver, a marketing official said today.

In Victoria the retail price range of eggs for grade A large was 57 and 58 cents, as compared with 51 and 55 cents in Vancouver, he said.

The decline of egg prices on the mainland was attributed to heavy shipments of eggs from the prairies.

SYMPATHETIC CITIZENS POUR $3,000 INTO FUND

Greater Victoria has now contributed $3,000 to the fund in aid of Mrs. A. Lamb of Metchosin and her four children.

Welcome contributions to the fund received at the Times office included $25 each from the Stagette Club and Nazarene Shrine. Total contributed through the two Times offices is now close to $350.

The fund will close Saturday, according to Rev. H. M. Bolton, Metchosin, organizer, with a dance sponsored by Colwood Social Club in aid of the drive.

Mrs. Lamb was bereaved Dec. 27 when her husband was killed at Witty's Lagoon. Her son, Brian, injured at the same time, is recovering at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Minnie Awaits Appeal Ruling

Young Seaman Pleads For Borstal Sentence Fearing Prison May End Career In Navy

Appeal Court today reserved judgment until Friday morning in the appeal of Edward J. Minnie, 22, of Victoria, convicted of breaking and entering to commit theft.

The court also ordered a probation officer's report on Robert Lacy, 18, Victoria, a seaman in the R.C.N., who pleaded guilty recently to nine separate charges of breaking and entering.

Lacy was sentenced to two years' imprisonment less one day by Magistrate A. I. Thomas.

He asked the court to reduce his sentence to the New Haven Borstal School, so that he would not have a criminal record.

"If I go to jail or penitentiary I'll get a criminal record, and I won't have much of a chance of staying in the navy," he said. "If I go to New Haven there's a chance the navy won't discharge me."

RESERVED JUDGMENT

The court reserved judgment in Minnie's case after the accused claimed he had been wrongfully convicted by Magistrate Henry C. Hall.

Minnie was found guilty by the magistrate of breaking into Jack's Auto Radio Shop on Pandora Nov. 9. He was sentenced to two years' imprisonment, less one day.

Two other men, Stanley Turner and Eric Robb, pleaded guilty to the same offense.

Minnie told the court that he was convicted by the police magistrate solely on the evidence of Turner.

At the police court trial of Turner, Minnie said, Turner testified he had taken part in the theft.

On the other hand, Minnie said, Eric Robb, an accomplice of Turner, denied that he (Minnie) had taken part in the breaking and entering.

Minnie said that he was in a restaurant two blocks away from the radio store when the theft took place.

"I tell you I am innocent," he told the court. "I had nothing to do with the crime."

SHIPS AND MEN

Work Aboard Warcraft Rushed For Ceremonies

By MONTE ROBERTS, Times Marine Reporter

In a welter of ordered confusion, a final work of refit is being rushed to completion on H.M.C.S. Quebec, readying her for recommissioning and rechristening ceremonies Monday.

And when the job is done—Victoria's industrial payroll will have been increased by more than $1,125,000.

Roberts

The largest item in the refit job was payroll. Since last August, hundreds of dockyard workers have swarmed over and through the ship, and even now, with the great majority of the work finished, more than 400 are on board, most of them painters and electricians.

The staff of H.M.C. Dockyard, from superintendent to newest machine shop apprentice, is proud of its work on the cruiser. And they have every justification for pride in a big job, well and efficiently done.

You'd get some idea of the intricacy and precision of the work if you boarded the ship now, as she lies alongside Dockyard jetty. A sign beside the gangway announces: "All material taken on or off this ship must be weighed." Even a length of rubber hose—weight, one pound—must be recorded, and its position marked on a blueprint of the ship.

On a fighting ship you can't dump gear and stores around with gay abandon. She has to be trimmed and balanced with more precision than you'd load your canoe with camping gear.

Before any new equipment was installed on Quebec, navy experts located her metacentric height—her exact centre of buoyancy. This was done by "inclining" the ship, first to port, then to starboard, by placing accurately-measured weights on her deck.

Once the metacentre is located, every pound of weight added to the ship has to be placed in precisely the correct position.

Every other phase of the work on Quebec is marked with the same precision, the same respect for detail. And when Quebec begins her sea trials, on Jan. 24, the results of navy planning and navy skill will be revealed.

Quebec's full crew goes aboard Saturday, and the last of the civilian workers will leave at 11.30 Saturday night. Then Monday's ceremonies will officially add a second cruiser to Canada's navy.

Other parts of Dockyard are busy, too. H.M.C.S. Ontario is in Government Drydock for major refit; the reserve minesweeper Winnipeg is in the smaller drydock, for routine maintenance; and the shops are actually busier than in wartime. For instance; during the last war, the machine shop employed 112 men—now 240 work there. The electrical shop has four times as many employees now as in wartime.

Tuesday night's gale sank two of the Grief Point mooring buoys, Malaspina Strait, B.C., marine agent T. E. Morrison advises. Only two of the buoys are now left.

A new buoy has been established in Trincomali Channel, at head of Clam Bay, on the edge of the drying bank on the Kuper Island side of boat passage between Thetis and Kuper islands.

A day beacon has been constructed in Sechelt Inlet, on the 11-foot drying dock in Secret Bay, Skookumchuck Narrows. Its mast, carrying a square slatwork daymark, white, rises nine feet above high water.

Fractional Price Cut In Beef May Be Brief

U.S. Meat Floods Canadian Market

A "1 or 2-cent" decrease in the price of beef in British Columbia next week was predicted today by the provincial agriculture department.

The situation, however, is not expected to last long so budget-wise housewives should act hurriedly.

The slight drop in beef prices was predicted because of an unprecedented flood of cheaper American meat on the Canadian market, especially in the east, where prices also are expected to drop.

Industry spokesmen said the sudden flood of U.S. beef was due to price controls on meat in the United States and the strengthening of the Canadian dollar on international exchange markets.

Officials said, however, the fact the American beef is cheaper than the Canadian product "is a temporary situation." Prices will "adjust" in a short time, they said.

It is the first time on record that U.S. beef has entered Canada in quantity. Normally, Canada has an exportable beef surplus.

Meanwhile, the first shipment of American meat has arrived in Victoria. One packer this morning received a small "trial order" shipment of lamb, but he glumly predicted it will not sell any cheaper than current Canadian prices.

The firm hasn't yet figured out for what price the lamb will sell, but he was sure it wasn't going to be any cheaper. Exchange, duty and freight charges had to be figured out, he said.

Meanwhile, four other packers said they have decided against importing American meat. Some previously had shown interest in importing beef which they thought could be sold below current local prices.

"I'm a Canadian, and I'll buy Canadian products," said one packer.

BEES WILL NESTLE IN HIS EARS—APIARIST WON'T TELL SECRET

Bees love Chester Bacon, a retired Saskatchewan apiarist and amateur movie maker, now living in Victoria.

Bacon, who presented a colored movie on the life history of bees to members of the Victoria Natural History Society Tuesday, showed how he can attract bees to his face so that they rest on his lips and nose or nestle in his ears.

When asked afterwards how it was done, Bacon said it was a trade secret.

Bacon said no matter how careful an apiarist was, he was bound to get stung by his bees now and again.

"And if a bee-keeper shows signs of fear, he is really in for it," he said. "Bees go for a man who is afraid."

Bacon's picture featured a black bear's raid on an apiary.

Perry Claims Premier Won 'Cadmean' Victory

No Rebel Group Forming Behind His Banner Ex-President Of Liberal Association Says

If Premier Byron Johnson believes he won himself a victory at the Liberal party executive meeting in Vancouver Tuesday, "then he can take what solace he can from a cadmean victory, Harry Perry, resigned Liberal association president, said Wednesday.

(A cadman victory is one by which the victor gains nothing but an empty shell.)

Perry quit the presidency due to health reasons after the premier won over to his side rank and file members who wanted an immediate Liberal convention for the purpose of declaring that Coalition with the Conservatives is at an end.

Johnson persuaded the executive to put over the convention time limit to June 30.

Meanwhile, Perry said a large group of anti-Johnson Liberals had asked him to lead an independent Liberal party, but he has turned them down.

Perry forecast a general election before next June, stating he couldn't see how it could be avoided.

He reiterated charges he has made that Coalition is giving away all the resources of the country.

Perry said he would not lead a group of Independent Liberals because at heart he is still a Liberal.

"I and my allies have retired from the field, so that the Liberals can go on united. The field is now open to Mr. Johnson to fight the enemies of Liberalism, and not fight other members within our party," said Perry.

ALL-DAY JOB?

City Council's Committeemen Face Big Task

All-day sessions may be in store for aldermanic committees under the new set-up announced by Mayor Claude Harrison in his inaugural address.

Since the mayor has put committee work under three main headings, and all committees in each group will be composed of the same council members, aldermen will be able to clean up all their committee business at one time.

To do so, though, they may have to sit one whole day a week. Under the old system, aldermen were often called to attend three or four committee meetings during a week.

First group committee meetings will be held within the next week to map out schedules for the year. Finance committee will meet Friday at 10. Public works committee members will hold their first session Tuesday at 2. Parks committee will meet Wednesday at 9.30.

Harold Price Wins Toastmasters' Prize

Harold Price won Camosun Toastmasters' Club weekly prize for the best speech of the evening Wednesday at Strathcona Hotel dining room.

John Coates, Victoria College student, gave a talk on hypnosis, and Vernon Footner was toastmaster. There were 19 guests.

Pendray Turns First Sod On Church's Site

First sod was turned Wednesday afternoon at the site of a planned addition to Metropolitan United Church.

Herbert J. Pendray, chairman of the church building committee, did the spade work while Rev. A. E. Whitehouse, pastor, conducted a short service.

Work will be started immediately by Parfitt Construction Co. Ltd., to erect the addition, which is to provide a recreation hall, a modern kitchen, ladies' lounge and facilities for young people's church work.

The new building will occupy the present rose garden area at Quadra and Johnson at the rear of the church. To keep costs to a minimum, original plans to have the addition faced with stone, like the church itself, have been put aside. The new section will be concrete with stucco finish.

The building is to cost less than $100,000. Construction is expected to take about seven months.

Two-War Veteran, F. Swain, 51, Dies

Frederick William Swain, 51, resident manager of the Scott Apartments, 2659 Douglas, died in St. Joseph's Hospital today.

Well known in this city, Mr. Swain was a member of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, Aerie No. 12, the Pro Patria branch of the Canadian Legion and of the Camosun Lodge and Columbia Chapter of the Masonic Order. He was a veteran of the First and Second World Wars.

Surviving are his widow, Agnes; sister, Mrs. Ed. Erickson of Canmore, Alberta; brother, Richard J. Swain; uncle, R. J. Swain, Victoria; and several aunts and uncles residing in Eastern Canada and the United States.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

School Board Vacancy May Be Filled By Draw

Cowichan Body Advised To Make Decision Without Consulting Other Authorities

Trustees of Cowichan School District No. 65 could "draw from a hat" to break the deadlock facing them over selection of a trustee to fill a vacancy unfilled at the December elections, Dr. F. T. Fairey, deputy education minister, said today.

Advised that the school board Wednesday night decided to refer the matter to the municipal council for a decision, Dr. Fairey said:

"That just isn't proper. The act says the school board must make the decision. That's why the minister refused to do so earlier this week," said the deputy.

Dr. Fairey said the decision is not up to the council to make, but if the council makes a choice and then the selection is approved by the school board, it would be proper enough.

"Why don't they simply draw a name out of a hat?" he asked.

The board's voting has resulted in a four-vote tie between Councillor George Whittaker and J. H. Moore.

There is a possibility the council will not make a choice, but instead will call an election. There may, however, be opposition to an election because of the expense when a simple drawing from a hat could be used.

Meanwhile, the board assumed it had power to carry on business minus one trustee, and elected W. J. Long, last year's chairman, as acting chairman until the board is completed.

Four Vessels Taking Cargo At Ogden Pt.

For the first time this year four ships are loading at the same time at Ogden Point Docks.

Today Ss. Pardo and Pacific Stronghold joined Demosthenes and Sea Coronet. All are loading lumber for U.K. points.

Pardo, a Royal Mail ship, is under command of Capt. T. W. Stevens, and passed through Victoria in mid-December, discharging a cargo of spirits and automobiles. After taking on cargo at mainland ports, she is completing her load here.

Pacific Stronghold, a 7,698 ton Victory Ship of the same design as the stricken Ss. Pennsylvania, is for Manchester via San Francisco. Capt. A. Cook is in command.

SHOPPING GUIDE

'South Paws' Now Open Tins With No Difficulty

By PENNY SAVER

By yumpin' yiminy!

In this modern day and age it doesn't matter whether you are left-handed, right-handed, or no handed. Mind you, I wouldn't advise you to hack off your wrists just so you can let all the mechanical gadgets do your work. No, no!

But if you are left-handed and have had to do handstands all your life to get a can-opener to work for you, you're in for a treat.

Yes, ma'am. It's happy grinding ahead. Granted, the family will be disappointed when they realize they are going to miss the one-act skit that is performed when you use a right-handed can-opener.

The price is just the same for either a right or a left-handed can-opener. They start at 10 pennies and go as high as $15.

Education In Selection

I don't know whether you have ever taken the time to look over a selection of openers. It is an education in itself.

It is hard to believe that there could be such variety in one utensil. In the higher brackets they have ones that will automatically open a can and leave a "smooth" cut. Others are magnetic and grip the can without clamping it.

"Why, you can even get them in a color to match your kitchen.

For some time now we have been able to get the kind that go on the wall and swing out when in use and then fit flat against the wall when you've finished with it.

I used to think that was really outstanding, but you should see what they have done to improve on this modern convenience.

* * *

There is usually at least one person in a household that complains bitterly if the core is left in grapefruit when it is served.

With no extra trouble you can get that core out in seconds flat. You simply insert sharp-edged prongs which form an "O" in the centre of the fruit and then pull the two handles apart and the core will come out "clean as a whistle."

The grapefruit corer is 98 pennies.

Also to add to the selection of kitchen gadgets is the ketchup dispenser. There is no need to even mention what problem this would put an end to.

The dispenser is in gay red plastic and fits right in the ketchup bottle. A rubber tube attached to it compresses the air so that when you tilt the bottle and press a small pump handle the etchup flows out under complete control.

It's a wonderful thing. The price for this is 79 cents.

'Why Grow Old?' – 8-Week Marathon

This exercise in which the leg is moved back and forth level with the floor, will do a great deal toward shaping your bulging thighs during the next eight weeks.

Hips Too Large? Can Slim Them Without Losing Weight

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

As you no doubt have discovered by now, my eight-week self-improvement marathon is being offered this week.

Many women join the marathon who do not need to lose weight but find their correct number of pounds poorly distributed. It is entirely possible and usual to find, even when you weigh the amount you should, that your hips, waist or abdomen are out of proportion.

For these women, exercise waves the magic wand. This is the exercise for the large back hipline: Sit on the floor with both knees bent, knees close together and twist so the right leg rests on the floor, toes pointing to the left. Place your fingertips on the floor behind you. Lift the legs and flop over to the left, toes pointing to the right. You really have to lift and slam down. Stop before you get to the bone. This gives your waist a twist also. Continue.

Those women who are overweight will have to diet as well as exercise. Those who have the correct number of pounds can rely on daily exercise alone for results.

If you are one of those women who wish to correct any defect in figure or beauty which may be a handicap, and would like to see what can be done about it in eight weeks' time, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with 10 cents and your request for my eight-week self-improvement marathon. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

A little butter goes a long way when added to cooked vegetables immediately after draining them.

Barbara Brents BUYS AND WHYS
A WEEKLY INFORMATION SERVICE

MONTREAL, Jan. 10th—A good supply of lemons is a must these cold-catching days. You see, lemons are "expert" cold-chasers. Alkalinize your system by drinking the juice of one lemon in a glass of water with a half teaspoon of bicarbonate of soda every 2 to 3 hours first day . . . then 3 or 5 times a day thereafter—if necessary. Add the soda slowly and drink as foaming quiets. You'll be wise, too, to drink hot lemonade when you go to bed . . . it induces system-cleansing perspiration. There!—you have my "secret formula" for dealing with a cold. But be sure the lemons you buy are SUNKIST CALIFORNIA LEMONS. They're the finest, juiciest grown.

There'll Be Cries Of 'More — More' when you serve this Sunny Butter Loaf. Made with SWANS DOWN CAKE FLOUR, it's soft as down . . . moist . . . and melting. For Swans Down is sifted and re-sifted 'til it's 27 times as fine as ordinary flour!

SUNNY BUTTER LOAF
(4 egg yolks)

2¼ c. sifted Swans Down Cake Flour
2¼ tsp. Calumet Baking Powder
¼ tsp. salt
½ c. butter or other shortening
1 c. sugar
4 egg yolks, beaten until thick and lemon-coloured
¾ c. milk
1 tsp. vanilla

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Cream butter, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add egg yolks and beat well. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. Bake in greased loaf pan, 9 x 5 x 3 inches, in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 1¼ hours. Spread with a tangy lemon icing.

It's A Lucky Number to remember when you're buying tomato ketchup . . . the big, economy-size 13-ounce bottle of HEINZ TOMATO KETCHUP! There are at least 13 good reasons why Heinz "13-ouncer" is the very best buy. Just compare it with the 11-ounce bottle of some brands. You'll see how little it costs for Heinz extra value . . . ketchup so rich that a few drops go a long way. For like all of the HEINZ TOMATO PRODUCTS . . . Heinz Cream of Tomato Soup — Heinz Tomato Juice — Heinz Chili Sauce . . . the flavour is superb. It's the flavour of Heinz own, vine-ripened "Aristocrat" tomatoes, expertly cooked and seasoned to perfection in Heinz spotless kitchens.

More Often Than Not, it's just dry skin that makes pretty make-up seem unflattering. So here's good news! Woodbury scientists have put a new "miracle" ingredient in their WOODBURY DRY SKIN CREAM. A new substance called Penaten that carries all the rich oils in this famous cream deeper into the corneum layer of the skin. Yes, lanolin (nature's finest skin softener) and the three other special lubricating oils in Woodbury Dry Skin Cream are allowed to penetrate so much more thoroughly than ever before. So don't frown at the reflection in your mirror—bring new loveliness to your skin with Woodbury Dry Skin Cream—costs only 23c, 45c, 75c and $1.15.

It's A Good Day in the morning when you drink sparkling Sal Hepatica before breakfast . . . hard to believe that you felt sluggish and slow just a short time ago! Yes, with speedy SAL HEPATICA you avoid "Laxative Lag"—that feeling of discomfort that often goes on for hours until ordinary, slow-acting laxatives bring relief. And Sal Hepatica is so pleasant to take—sparkling clear—gentle as can be. It's an all-purpose, antacid laxative that's almost a medicine chest in itself—it relieves so many ailments so effectively. Yes, it chases the "Glooms"—brings out the "Smiles" . . . that's how I like to feel, don't you? Then take my tip—when you feel sluggish or headachy—remember speedy, sparkling Sal Hepatica!

The Bigger The Better? Well, not necessarily so if it's a case of who manufactures products we use every day. The makers of FACE-ELLE for example are not the largest producers of tissue handkerchiefs yet it's tops in quality! You can prove this by actual comparison. . . . Compare Face-Elle for downy softness . . . its extra strength. . . . Drop a ball of it into water and note how quickly it sinks, proving its extra absorbency! Yes, when you ask for Face-Elle by name you are getting more for your money . . . more of the qualities you want for real tissue handkerchief comfort. And that comfort means a lot, especially on sneezy days!

Who Can Blame You for feeling proud about keeping your food budget "out of the red"? And you can do it (even in these high-priced days!) when you buy good, inexpensive foods like BLUE BONNET MARGARINE. Blue Bonnet gives you so much for so little. Delicate, country-sweet flavour—fresh as can be all year 'round. And you'll love the Yellow Quik bag it comes in. Makes it so easy to colour Blue Bonnet . . . no messy dishes—no extra work . . . just press the colour button on the Yellow Quik bag and knead the bag gently. In just two minutes your Blue Bonnet is golden-yellow—ready-to-use. Yes, I feel I get a lot for my money when I buy Blue Bonnet Margarine.

Between Ourselves

By ELIZABETH FORBES

To you! And you! And you!

In fact, to everyone who read this column last Saturday night and kept my telephone and that of the president of the Rotary Anns, ringing all Sunday-at-home and most of Monday and Tuesday at this office.

"Bessie"

A sincere thank you! From every member of the Rotary Auxiliary, from myself, and from all those elderly citizens you have helped, not only with the material things you have given but in the thought that they are remembered.

Oh, yes, indeed—you gave us far too much clothing for one man.

There was underwear, socks, sweaters, shoes, pants, a suit and several overcoats. A donation of blankets, one of magazines and even a box of home-made candy.

The elderly gentleman I told you about will be outfitted completely. His patched old sweater will be discarded and the shoes with the holes covered over with cardboard will be burned.

He'll be able to put on a warm overcoat. And to place an extra blanket across his wife's crippled knees when she sits up for a few minutes on the side of her bed.

And he'll be so grateful it will hurt!

The other clothes you have given will be taken to other elderly citizens known to the Rotary Anns to be deserving of help and assistance.

Flowers Give Illusion Of Spring

It was June in January in the delightful home of Mrs. A. H. MacLachlan and her daughter, Mrs. Jean Ellis, when I dropped in the other day for a cup of tea.

In the hall and also near a window in the friendly living room were vases filled with branches of Oriental plum blossoms —in full bloom.

The delicate pink blossoms made a refreshing picture and when you leaned close enough to get a whiff of the fragrance, spring didn't seem to be so very far away.

It seems, that on a December day when the boulevard maintenance men were pruning the Oriental plum trees in front of the MacLachlan home, Jean Ellis was having a tea party.

"The girls took one look out the window," she tells you, "and when they saw all those branches lying around on the ground, the tea party turned into a rout.

"We ran up and down the boulevard, picking up dead-looking branches. Tied them in small bunches. Then every girl took some home to their basements to see if they would bloom.

"In the warm temperature in the basement, the buds mature," Jean explained, "then you bring a few at a time upstairs and they burst into bloom in a few hours.

"We've had them blooming for weeks now, and we've enjoyed them so much. So have all our friends."

Moral of this story would seem to be to live on or near a street where the boulevard trees happen to be Oriental plums. Then watch for the pruning season—and you'll be able to have spring in your home on the dullest day in January.

While we're on the subject—pussywillows are showing their kittens' ears.

I saw any number of them on the road to Metchosin yesterday.

Province's Oldest Institute Congratulates Former Member

Thirty-five years ago Alice Ravenhill was secretary of Provincial Board of the Women's Institutes of British Columbia.

This week Lake Hill, oldest institute in the province, recalled the fact at their first meeting of the year when they passed a resolution congratulating Dr. Ravenhill on the recent publication of her "Memoirs of an Educational Pioneer," a copy of which has been ordered. The hope was expressed that the author, who shortly will celebrate her 93rd birthday, would autograph the book before it is available for circulation among the members.

New president, Mrs. W. T. McGregor, took the chair. Of special interest in the provincial superintendent's monthly bulletin was that Mrs. J. East, B.C. president, had been authorized to present a $500 cheque to University of British Columbia for women's residence fund. Announcement was made, also, that a memorial to late Mrs. Alfred Watt, M.B.E., former Victorian, founder and first president of Associated Country-women of the World, is to be placed in the Peace Garden.

Mrs. Eric Hagen read a letter from her institute "pen-friend," resident in the Isle of Wight, and Miss E. Bruce brought a message from Edna Jaques, another former Victorian and well-known Canadian writer now living in Ontario.

During the tea hour special honors were accorded Mrs. E. Glover, who recently celebrated her 25th wedding anniversary. An elaborately-iced cake, made by the president, centred the candlelit table, and on behalf of the members Mrs. McGregor presented a mayonnaise bowl of silvered crystal to Mrs. Glover.

A social meeting, open to visitors, will be held January 28, from 2-4 p.m.

BRIDGE LESSON

by Oswald Jacoby

Hard Luck Joe goes to all the tournaments, but he never wins anything, naturally, because his luck is so terrible. It would really kill anybody else, but he's used to it, so his bad fortune doesn't bother him so much.

Here's a hand he encountered at the national tournament held in Detroit last month. It was just one of a hundred unlucky hands he managed to find.

West's bidding was more enterprising than sound, but it wasn't particularly abnormal. Tournament players know Joe very well, and they have a particular fondness for bidding their heads off against him.

West opened the three of hearts, East put up the jack, and Hard Luck Joe, playing the South hand, won with the ace. He led the king of spades and was permitted to hold the trick.

His next step was to lead the ten of clubs. West played low, and Joe put up dummy's king to win the trick. He returned a low heart from dummy to his king and ruffed a heart with dummy's seven of trumps.

He then tried to get out of dummy with a club, but East was able to win the trick; and East promptly laid down the ace of trumps and another trump.

This manoeuvre took all the trumps out of dummy. South had a losing heart in his hand, and no way to get rid of it. He had to give up a trick in each suit, losing the contract.

Joe thought that this was a very unlucky result, since everybody else managed to make four spades with the South hand.

As you've probably noticed, Joe dug his own grave. If you didn't notice, think about it for a moment or two before you read on. Where did South make the fatal error?

Joe made his mistake at the second trick when he led the king of trumps. Correct play is to leave the trumps alone.

South should cash the king of hearts and ruff a heart in dummy with the six of spades. The seven of spades is returned from dummy, and East cannot draw three rounds of trumps at this stage.

South is sure to get to his hand with a trump to ruff his last heart with dummy's ten of spades.

The rest, of course, is easy.

IN TUNE WITH THE TIMES

WITH TOMMIE WALTERS

The BBC believes in establishing the proper atmosphere to present many of their top sound and TV broadcasts. One notable example is Collins' Music Hall which bears a proud record. Situated a few yards from Islington Green, where soldiers once practised archery in preparation for the Battle of Agincourt, Collins' is the oldest music hall in London and has the necessary documents to prove it. It is world famous as one of the few remaining real, old-time music halls, and during the past year hundreds of visitors to London who have heard these broadcasts in their homelands made the trip to Islington to see the old place for themselves.

Many have met and talked with Lew Lake, its present proprietor who inherited the site from his famous father whom George Bernard Shaw once called "the second best actor in the world."

A 50-year old program lists George Robey at the head of over 100 who played a benefit performance there. Another, 36 years old, bears the name of Gracie Fields down among the wines and spirits advertisements. Charlie Chaplin appeared at Collins' with Fred Karno's "Mumming Birds" long before he sailed to America and fame and fortune, and the late Tommy Handley, star of BBC's most famous variety program, always held a soft spot for the place where he appeared so many times in his sketch "The Disorderly Room." Collins' also has a ghost said to roam in the daytime—with a penchant for moving heavy objects. No one knows who the wraith really is. But Collins' was built on an old graveyard, so it could well be anyone. "More likely than not," says Lake, "it is old Sam Collins, the first owner. He started life as a chimney sweep and then blossomed out as an Irish tenor."

TONIGHT . . . Wayne and Shuster at 6.30 on CBR. "Hollywood Sound Stage" at 7.30 on KIRO. "Amateur Hour" at 8 on KJR. "Hallmark Playhouse" at 8.30 on KIRO. "British Band Concert" at 9 on CJVI or "Dragnet" on KOMO. Adventures of P.C. 49" at 11.15 on CBR.

Last Of Okanagan Apples Reach Victoria's Market

New arrivals dominated the local fruit and vegetable market today.

From the Okanagan came shipments of extra fancy McIntosh apples—the last for the year. There are enough here to last for three or four weeks more. A new shipment of navel oranges from California is due tomorrow to supplement the Florida variety which are finished for the season.

A few carloads of carrots arrived this morning from the prairies and below the border.

Yams are now replacing sweet potatoes, while a new shipment of coconuts arrived from Vancouver.

Lettuce prices are slowly starting to go down. It is hoped they will be back to normal in a couple of weeks. However, onions will probably go up in price.

COURTENAY, Jan. 10.—Eleanor Swanson, who pleaded guilty to causing actual bodily harm to her eight-year-old son, was sentenced Wednesday by Mag. George Pidcock to four months in Oakalla.

Election-Year Congress Asks For Economy

Truman Wants More Money For Defense

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10 (AP) An election year congress responded with demands for economy and no more taxes today to President Truman's state-of-the-union appeal for a broad program of foreign aid and domestic spending.

Congressmen gave signs they will support a speed-up in efforts to increase American military might.

But the Republicans and southern Democrats who can muster a majority of both houses when they stick together appeared determined to hack down the amount of foreign aid and to scuttle many of the domestic social security proposals included in the address, which charted administration policies for the coming year.

They had some backers among administration supporters for their economy-and-no-more taxes movement.

With Prime Minister Churchill listening intently from a gallery seat, Truman called on congress Wednesday to meet the "very real" threat of a third world war by bolstering the free nations of Europe and Asia with more economic and military aid.

The President proposed, among other things (1) an increase in the size of the United States armed forces; (2) an expansion of "point four" aid abroad to combat "stomach Communism"; (3) tighter inflation controls, and (4) a list of domestic welfare measures including defense housing, labor law revisions, aid to education, medical care, stronger farm price supports and a $5 a month increase in social security benefits.

Senator Ernest W. McFarland, of Arizona, the Democratic leader, was pleased that Truman called for an increase in the size of the air force and stepped up defense production.

Senator Edwin C. Johnson (Dem., Colo.), who doesn't always agree with Truman, called it "one of the President's better speeches."

Republicans pounded the point that Truman made no mention of economics. Senator Irving M. Ives (Rep., N.Y.) said the message "showed practically no concern over the actual economic welfare of the country."

RE-ESTABLISHED ANGLO-AMERICAN UNITY

Papers Agree Big 2 Meet Success

LONDON, Jan. 10 (AP) — Prime Minister Churchill's mission to Washington has succeeded, British morning papers agreed today in editorials.

Most concluded that although the communique on the Truman-Churchill talks was necessarily vague, it did re-establish Anglo-American unity on a firmer basis.

"The Washington conversations seem to have gone forward from cordiality to genuine good cheer with thorough understanding on both sides," said the Liberal Manchester Guardian, adding:

"That, at least by outward signs, has been their achievement. Of course the substance is important also, although the formal announcement gives away no secrets. The visit has done something to restore mutual respect in the alliance of friendship between the two nations. Mr. Churchill has not, after all, had to be too conscious of his bank balance."

Said The Times:

"It would be absurd to expect detailed information about results which may not in any case be seen for many months. It is enough if they have reached genuine understanding and have revived an atmosphere of friendship in which officials and ministers on both sides can continue to work on these problems. The communique is heartening."

The Conservative Daily Telegraph criticized "obscurities" in the communique. It said little was disclosed about the talks except "generalities."

Churchill Takes Rest In New York

NEW YORK, Jan. 10 (AP).—Prime Minister Churchill put aside his official duties today and relaxed as house guest of his 81-year-old friend, financier Bernard M. Baruch.

The 77-year-old British leader, apparently tired from his 18 hours of meetings with President Truman, arranged to stay indoors throughout the day, lounging about in Baruch's apartment. Churchill arrived here from Washington Wednesday night by train.

Aides said he planned only to read the newspapers, nap, smoke his long cigars—and take an occasional sip of his favorite brandy.

Baruch told a reporter "no high-powered visitors" are scheduled to call. To give Churchill a chance to rest, Baruch said he planned to go out "to tend to my business as usual" during the day.

The Prime Minister is to leave by R.C.A.F. plane Friday for Ottawa and a four-day round of conferences with Canadian Prime Minister St. Laurent and other top Canadian officials.

In Ottawa he will deliver Monday night his first full-dress speech since arriving in America for his White House sessions with Truman.

His chief aides, most of whom remained in Washington, are to join him there.

Churchill will fly back to Washington with his party Tuesday to prepare the speech he is to give before a joint session of Congress the next day.

Members of the American Irish Minutemen — who frequently picket visiting dignitaries in behalf of Irish unification — marched in front of Baruch's apartment house for an hour and a half Wednesday night. The group of pickets reached a maximum of 60.

A coroner's jury at Port Alberni Tuesday brought in a verdict that the traffic accident death of Cephas James Hawkins on Dec. 16 was due to the negligence of another driver.

R.C.M.P. said it was likely that a serious charge may be laid against Roy Crowley arising from Hawkins' death. Death occurred in a collision on the Alberni Highway, five miles from the port city.

BEDTIME STORY

by Thornton W. Burgess

From late summer to early winter, Lightfoot the Deer had had the respect of all the people in the Green Forest with the possible exception of his big cousin, Flathorns the Moose. Even Buster Bear, great big Buster Bear, had had respect for Lightfoot. You see, Lightfoot at that time was at his very best, and he was filled with pride. He was handsome, and he knew it. His head was crowned with the finest set of antlers he ever had worn.

Then he lost those wonderful antlers. They became loose and fell in the snow of early winter. With them fell Lightfoot's self respect and the respect of all his neighbors, even the respect of Mrs. Lightfoot and his own children.

Now it was Mrs. Lightfoot who said where they should go, and what they should do, and led the way. It was mother to whom the twins turned at all times. They just didn't pay any attention to Lightfoot.

Peter Rabbit happened to be over in the Green Forest when he should have been at home in the dear Old Briar-Patch. He hadn't seen Lightfoot for many weeks. The last time he had seen him Lightfoot had been strutting about, full of pride and expecting everybody to admire him. So now it was somewhat upsetting to Peter when he chanced to see Lightfoot plodding through the snow some little way behind Mrs. Lightfoot and the twins.

Instead of holding his head proudly, he held it low as if he were ashamed of something. I suspect he was ashamed. I suspect he was ashamed of his looks. Of course that was foolish. The loss of good looks, if through no fault of one's own, never is anything to be ashamed of.

Peter stared most impolitely. "What has happened to Lightfoot?" he asked of his big cousin, Jumper the Hare.

"The same thing that happens to him every winter. He lost his antlers and with them he lost his pride, and that is a silly thing for him to do," said Jumper.

"Why silly?" asked Peter.

"Because," replied Jumper, "Lightfoot knows perfectly well that in time he'll have a new set of those antlers, and perhaps even a better set than the ones he has lost. He'll have them when he really needs them. He doesn't really need them now. So why should he be ashamed?"

Building Laws Attacked By Lumber Trade

Dissatisfaction with a recent amendment of the city's building by-law was expressed Tuesday by Victoria Retail Lumber and Shingle Co-Operative Association.

In a letter to the city, the group asked if it could interview council on the matter.

Members felt they should have been consulted. The amendment, which imposes certain fees regarding lumber yards and woodyards, and sets out procedure for applying for permits, was ratified Oct. 23, 1951.

"Certain restrictions regarding maintenance and operating of lumber yards are impossible for members to adhere to," the association wrote.

Members agreed that until matters contained in the by-law restricting operating of lumber yards was clarified they would not make necessary applications for permits.

SCOUTS AND CUBS AFIELD

Belmont Troop Formed; Scoutmasters To Study

By FREEMAN KING
Scout Commissioner

During the holiday season, the troops and packs have been rather quiet, but I hear that boys from the North Quadra troop spent several days in camp.

The Belmont group has added a Scout troop to its unit. Congratulations to this go-ahead group! We hear that Saanichton is planning the formation of a troop as well.

The group committee of the Lions' Own Troop held their regular meeting on Monday when it planned to hold a bazaar early in March, and another paper drive in the near future. The Rover crew of this group held their first meeting in their new den at 1034 Johnson. They now have a place to call their own for regular meetings.

The scoutmasters' district course will commence on Monday, Jan. 14, at district headquarters. This course will run for four consecutive Mondays and will enable a new scouter to understand the workings of a Scout troop. This is open to anyone who would like to take the course as long as they are over the age of 18 years. The meeting will start at 8.

Plans have been completed for the district annual meeting which will be held on Wednesday, Jan. 23, at the Monterey Cafe. The meeting and dinner are open to all members of group committees.

Cubs from the Willows and Cadboro Bay packs and Scouts from the Tillicum troop will put on displays of their work.

Italian Actress Gets 'Slap Happy'

ROME, Jan. 10 (Reuters)—Fiery Italian movie star Anna Magnani likes her acting realistic.

She had to slap an actor in a scene shot near here Monday night.

She slapped him. But she did not think the slap was good enough.

She slapped him again.

She went on slapping him for eight hours.

At last she said she was satisfied.

The actor, 41-year-old Arnaldo Mocchetti, staggered to hospital where doctors said he would need medical treatment for at least five days.

Toronto Up Strong At Mart Close

TORONTO, Jan. 10 (CP).—Only golds failed to respond today as renewed support toward the session's close bolstered stock-market prices.

Industrials opened irregularly, turned upward during the first hour but reversed direction as the session progressed until mid-afternoon. Volume was about 2,500,000 shares.

The federal government's relaxation of credit restrictions sparked strong advances in selected issues but produced little general response. Industrial acceptance jumped $2.50 while Ford A and Traders Finance strengthened. Papers, constructions, refining oils and manufacturing companies led the market while steels and banks drew firm support. Foods, however, weakened.

In senior golds changes were small. Juniors and holding companies eased while prospects traded irregularly.

Western oils were strong. Calnorth, Central-Leduc, Del Rio, Home Oil, Model Oil, Okalta, Omnitrans, Superior and Western Homestead showed advances ranging to about 35 cents. Canadian Atlantic, General Petroleum and Trans Empire dipped.

Base metals pushed upward. Consolidated Smelters, Falconbridge, Hudson Bay, International Nickel and Quemont climbed strongly.

New York Active

NEW YORK, Jan. 10 (AP)—Broad buying lifted the stock market today in a general recovery movement from reverses suffered earlier this week.

There were many gains of between two and three points among leaders at the best, while a selected few issues pushed sharply beyond that.

Rising prices encouraged trading of an estimated 1,600,000 shares.

U.S. rubber gained between four and five points with a top gain of around six on the strength of the proposal for a three-for-one stock split to be accomplished with a two-for-one initial split and then a 50 per cent stock dividend.

Also higher were Union Pacific, Santa Fe, Sinclair Oil, United Air Lines, American Telephone, U.S. Steel and Chrysler.

Canadian issues were mostly higher. Dome Mines and International Nickel were each up ⅛, Canadian Pacific added ¼, McIntyre climbed ½ and Distillers Seagram was ahead ⅜. Hiram Walker dropped ⅛ on the curb, Lake Shore was up ½, Royalite Oil advanced ¾ and Giant Yellowknife remained unchanged.

Montreal Strong

MONTREAL, Jan. 10 (CP).—Strong advances continued to rule the list near the close today on the Montreal Stock Exchange and curb market, in an extension of yesterday's end-of-session rally.

Senior metals and miscellaneous industrials led the upturn. Papers, beverages, senior oils and carriers posted lesser gains.

Steels fell off from their stronger forenoon position, mixing plus and minus signs near the close.

Industrial acceptance was a strong spot, hitting a new high of 39 earlier before slipping to 38, up 2⅛ points. Canadian cottons was up two points at 70 in the wake of yesterday's three-point rise.

Mines drew only irregular support, holding gains and losses in balance. Carnegie, Tungsten and Weedon advanced, while Arnora and Bob's Lake eased. Western oils firmed after a hesitant first hour. Central Explorers, Jet and Western Homestead were higher.

Vancouver Oils Lead

VANCOUVER (Noon)—Vancouver's trading to noon featured strong oils with losses registered in none. Britalta was the leader, up 20 cents to $5.20. Del Rio gained 11 cents to $2.10. The rest showed gains of a few cents.

Mines held steady and mostly unchanged.

Industrials continued to display strength in the face of switching and closed mostly unchanged.

London Hesitant

LONDON, Jan. 10 (Reuters).—Uncertainty today deprived the stock exchange of any benefit it might have obtained from the communique on the Churchill-Truman talks. Market men were reluctant to extend commitments while awaiting government measures to deal with Britain's economic crisis.

Prices of other domestic stocks dropped when British Government funds lost ground to the extent of ⅛. Tobacco and store shares were particularly dull in the industrials.

There was little interest in foreign bonds. German loans joined Japanese issues in a downward trend.

Tin shares held firm under the influence of a good dividend from British Tin Investment—27 per cent for the year against 19½ per cent. The shares of this company gained nine pence at 19.6.

Minings were mixed.

EXPORT BOON

Canada Traders See Free Exchange Gain

By BURKE CAHILL
Times Business Editor

Free exchange and the enhancement of Canadian money abroad is of special interest to the import and export business. From now on there will be increasing opportunity to couple dealing in foreign exchange with the regular activities as was done before the advent of controls.

However, trading in foreign currencies is a tricky business. Our merchants and brokers are pretty rusty after the 12-year lay off and they will need to step cautiously until they get their hands in. Real artistry in arbitrage is required on the foreign exchange markets today, confused and uncertain as they are in the maze of controls and half controls which obscure the significant trends.

Most exporters agree that for a while yet the bulk of their business will continue to be invoiced in U.S. dollars. But as Canadian currency works into full play on the international market invoicing in Canadian money will become regular practice. This will shift the risk, for Canadian exporters, of fluctuating exchange rates in their favor. Canadian shippers will receive a known amount of Canadian dollars no matter what the rate of the currency of the country which is importing the Canadian goods may be.

* * *

The smaller manufacturer's operations especially will be simplified considerably by having him deal in Canadian dollars only.

The larger exporter may often now have opportunities to find new business provided he is willing to assume the exchange risk connected with accepting the currency of a foreign country whose money is not universally accepted. However, this phase should diminish in importance when the Canadian dollar becomes so prevalent in exchange markets that Canadian importers too will be dealing exclusively in their own coin and will be billed in terms of their own money.

The net result should be an important stimulus to our export and import trade.

Paper made from wastes will be turned out at a new $1,300,000 plant being built at Thorold, Ont.

The new process was developed by research experts of the Ontario Paper Company.

President of the company says that the development may potentially provide a new industry for Canada.

B.C. coal output for November was well over the previous month and ahead of the same month in 1950.

Over-all exports through B.C. gained $111,000,000 in the first eight months of 1951 over 1950. Imports went up too by $55,000,000 for the same period over 1950.

The largest increase in exports was made by the wood and wood products group which accounted for $62,000,000 of the total increase.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG

WINNIPEG, Jan. 10 (CP)—Early advances in most grains, except barley, were erased in late trading today on the Winnipeg grain exchange when United States markets turned easier.

In the first half of the session, fairly aggressive buying by eastern shippers and exporters sent oats and barley prices up. This buying was accompanied by reports of export business to the continent. However, oats fell off towards the close, but barley remained higher.

Both rye and flax turned lower in the last half of the moderately active session in sympathy with U.S. declines.

Export loadings of Canadian wheat were confined to 400,000 bushels to the United Kingdom.

Class two wheat and I.W.A. prices were unchanged from yesterday.

Closing prices:

Oats — May 1-8 lower, 96 1-2; July 1-8 lower, 91 1-8a; Oct. 3-8 lower, 87 3-8a.

Barley — May 3-8 higher, 1.40 7-8b; July 1-4 higher, 1.29a; Oct. 1 1-8-1 1-4 higher, 1,21 7-8-1.22.

Montreal Buying In Govt. Bonds

MONTREAL, Jan. 10 (CP)—Some interest was shown in short-term Government of Canada issues today on the Montreal bond market, and they were generally improved. The remainder of the high-grade market was quiet. Convertibles were mainly stronger on the corporate market, led by C.P.R. 3½'s which advanced more than a point.

$ Exchange

NEW YORK, Jan. 10 (CP).—The Canadian dollar was unchanged at a discount of ¾ per cent in terms of United States funds in foreign exchange dealings today. The pound sterling was down 9-16 of a cent at $2.78 3-16.

MONTREAL, Jan. 10 (CP).—The market rate for United States funds as reported by the Bank of Canada at noon today, E.S.T., was $1.00 ¾, unchanged from Wednesday noon.

The pound sterling was $2.80 3-16, down 3-16 from Wednesday.

More Curbs On Steel Ordered

OTTAWA, Jan. 10 (CP)—Canada tightened her control on vital steel stocks tonight with two new orders designed to prevent stockpiling and putting a further curb on the uses to which construction steel may be put.

In issuing the orders, the Defense Production Department said that they "reflect the continuing difficult supply situation in 1952."

Canada has had steel under control for a year to ensure an adequate supply for her big defense production program. Coming under control is all domestic production of steel and supplies Canada is able to get on a priority basis from the United States.

One order replaces a directive made last March which prohibited acquisition of steel for use in non-essential types of construction such as for amusement purposes and office buildings without permission of the steel controller.

The order continues these prohibitions. No new classes of buildings are added but the order prohibits steel purchases for use in construction of buildings which are to be sold or leased or used in part for non-essential purposes unless by permit of the controller.

The other order sets inventory limits, relating the permissible steel stocks to past consumption or future needs.

Effective April 1 the inventory limits will be either two-thirds of the amount used in the calendar quarter preceding the placing of the order, or an amount not more than the "reasonably anticipated requirements for 60 days from the date of delivery of new supplies," whichever is less.

Royal Bank Head Hits Tax Program

MONTREAL, Jan. 10 (CP)—James Muir, president of the Royal Bank of Canada, questioned the effectiveness of the current government tax program as a curb to inflation in an address at the 83rd annual meeting of shareholders today.

He said the real test of tax policy in combatting inflation is whether that policy penalizes spending and rewards saving.

"With this in mind, one must recognize that a whole multitude of the spending public are not even touched by the more drastic of the additional imposts. In contrast, a large segment of the fixed wage and salary group has been hit and hit again."

Mr. Muir also questioned whether the new corporate taxes cut spending and encouraged saving. "Human nature being what it is, heavy corporate taxes tend to increase spending by corporations because the government is paying a correspondingly large part of the shot."

He praised the government moves in removing foreign exchange control.

To hasten industrial development and free trade, he recommended a long-run program of reduction or abolition of excise and sales taxes at the manufacturer's level.

"The result will be a more rational price and tax structure for the developing Canadian economy," he said.

New Head For Small Firms

OTTAWA (CP)—The small industries branch of the defense production department appointed a new head today, T. Norbert Beaupre, 34-year-old special assistant to Deputy Minister MacKenzie. He succeeds G. D. Mallory as head of the division set up to watch over the interests of the smaller manufacturers in allocation of materials, orders and controls connected with the national production drive.

The small industries branch has been established to deal with problems of small business.

B.C. Resources Conference Here

Fifth annual meeting of the British Columbia Resources Conference, an organization representing industry, university and government, will be held in Victoria Feb. 27, 28 and 29.

Leaders in the agricultural, forestry, mining and fishing fields are scheduled to address the meeting.

An election of officers will be held.

SASKATOON, Jan. 10 (CP)—Commissioner Jack Vallance of the Board of Grain Commissioners says he is convinced that much of the damp grain from last year's crop will spoil in the spring. The commissioner said he could set no store by the commercial grain driers on the market. It was up to the individual farmer to do whatever he could to dry his own grain before spring.

Search For New Mines In B.C. Urged

More prospecting for new mines to supplement the re-opening of old properties is urged by Dr. H. V. Warren, new president of the British Columbia and Yukon Chamber of Mines.

He told the 39th annual meeting of the chamber, at Vancouver, that most of the properties opened in British Columbia recently are mines discovered years ago now able to operate because of higher prices.

What is needed, he stressed, are new discoveries, new lodes. Dr. Warren is professor of mineralogy at the University of British Columbia and knows whereof he speaks.

Scurry's Red Deer Lake Now Tapping Hopeful Well Zone

By C. V. MYERS

Scurry Oils report today their Red Deer Lake discovery well is now through D2 without water. The green shale contact was 51-21. The D2 had thinned considerably so that green shale came in 20 feet higher than anticipated.

In previous experience with reefs a thin D2 has been a good indicator for D3.

Latest reports from officials say there is a possibility that the green shale now contacted could be a break in D2 and further porosity in D2 could still exist.

ON THE LABOR SCENE

By DAVE STOCK

Despite high living costs, a good number of Vancouver workers have been able to keep ahead of prices and, through gradual steps over the years, apparently have been able to increase their real earnings—the object of all workers in and out of the trade union movement.

Stock

An interesting report on Vancouver prices and earnings has just been released by the province's department of trade and industry. Department mathematicians have worked out a table comparing wages and living costs using figures provided by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

Unfortunately, necessary statistical information is not available for working out a report on the situation in Victoria. Nor, since there does not seem to be a provincial cost-of-living index, can there be a clear picture of the real earnings of B.C. workers as a whole.

However, here is the report on Vancouver:

Figures obtained from six major industries in that city show average weekly wages and salaries have climbed 99.8 per cent since 1939 while the cost of living there has risen 85 per cent.

This being so, the real earning power of the worker is said to have increased 8 per cent.

To put it simply, a man earning $100 in 1939 who spent his whole salary to provide his family's requirements, theoretically now earns $199.80, and, assuming his family's requirements are still the same, spends $185 a month, leaving him $14.20.

There'll be plenty, of course, who will be willing to line up and swear it doesn't work out that way. But the figures are still interesting.

NOT WHOLE PICTURE

The people who worked out the table are the first to admit it doesn't begin to show the whole picture. For one thing, it doesn't bring into scope the matter of unemployment. Wages used for the table are arrived at by the simple expedient of dividing the average payroll of the industries being surveyed by the average number of workers drawing pay envelopes.

In order to measure the welfare of all, it would be necessary to divide the payroll by the total number of persons dependent on those industries, whether employed or not, the statiticians point out.

* * *

Victoria and District Trades and Labor Council which on several occasions in recent months has viewed with concern the number of European D.P.'s being brought to this country, is now looking into the matter of immigrants who are paying their own way.

MAY BE DISAPPOINTED

The council fears that perhaps too rosy a picture of employment and opportunity in Canada is being painted in their homelands, and that immigrants are being disappointed when they arrive.

The local council has asked the Trades and Labor Congress office in Ottawa to make enquiries of the Immigration Department to see what sort of advertising it is doing overseas.

Discussion of the matter at the last council meeting prompted one delegate to recall a time 46 years ago when he was a young man in England where signs were plastered about reading "Canada Needs You." He answered the call but was dismayed to find that in the first Canadian city he hit, there was a store with a sign reading: "Man Wanted; Englishmen Need Not Apply."

Liberal Leaders To Map Policies Before Convention

(Special to The Times)

VANCOUVER, Jan. 10—Officers of the B.C. Liberal Assocation will appoint a committee of "outstanding Liberals" to draw up a comprehensive program of practical Liberal policies to be submitted to the forthcoming convention.

A resolution along these lines was approved by the executive Tuesday.

Preamble to the resolution noted the practises of Liberalism have undergone some compromise due to the exigencies of Coalition government, "and as a result have in the minds of many Liberals become uncertain and indistinct."

$576,000 U.B.C. Grant Promised From Ottawa

U.B.C. will receive in the next few weeks a grant of roughly $576,000 as its share in federal grants being paid to 82 Canadian universities.

The grants, recommended in the Massey Report to stave off financial disaster facing many universities, are paid on the basis of 50 cents a head on 1951 population figures.

Dr. F. T. Fairey, deputy education minister, said the grant will be paid directly to the university by Ottawa.

Grants to be paid total $7,100,000.

Quebec is the only province which has not yet come into the plan.

In Quebec a joint federal-provincial commission will be set up to determine the allocations to institutions.

No reason was given for the move. However, under the regulations, the option of a joint commission to determine which institutions would get the grants was open to any province. Quebec was the only province to resort to that method.

Victoria College will share the grant, together with Anglican Theological College and Union College of Vancouver.

Proffers Resignation As Head Of Arena Group

J. Carl Pendray today proffered his resignation as chairman of the Victoria Arena Commission.

Pendray tendered his resignation to Mayor Claude L. Harrison at his office in City Hall. The mayor said he wanted time to consider the matter before taking action.

The commission chief, himself a former mayor, said he had been deeply affected by the sudden death of his wife and that he planned to travel extensively during the year.

He said the job of arena commission chairman was a big one, requiring full-time attention. He gave this as the reason for resigning.

Pendray took over as arena commission chairman in June, 1951. He has filled the post most conscientiously.

Mrs. Pendray died at the family home, 2391 Beach Drive, on Dec. 29.

Other members of the Arena Commission are George I. Warren, Henry Watson, H. W. Davey and W. L. Woodhouse.

Body Is Blown 66 Feet

Hang-Fire Blamed In Police Probe

Blown 66 feet by a hang-fire blast, Fred Taylor, 30, was instantly killed at the farm he managed on Mt. Newton Crossroad, Central Saanich, at 12.35 today.

Chief Constable V. J. Lawley of Central Saanich reconstructed the accident in these words:

"He was blasting a huge fir stump and the charge was laid and tamped with a long fuse. Apparently there was a hang-fire and he went back to investigate.

"The blast must have gone off just as he reached it.

"He was blown 66 feet, over a four-foot-high fence, and must have died instantly."

Taylor was employed and lived at Springwood Farm, site of a pharmaceutical manufacturing enterprise.

His wife and one small child lived there with him.

Dr. G. H. Hoehn of Sidney was called by Chief Lawley. His examination showed multiple fractures and abrasions.

An inquest is expected to be set for early next week.

Carlsen Safe As Ship Sinks

Courageous Skipper And Mate Dancy Pulled From Sea After Leap From Flying Enterprise

By ROBERT MUSEL

FALMOUTH, Eng., Jan. 10 (UP).—The crew of the Flying Enterprise today climbed to the top of the ships funnel through wild winds and punishing seas and then plunged overboard. Within four minutes Capt. Kurt Carlsen and Mate Kenneth Dancy were picked up by the British tug Turmoil and promptly were given dry clothing and a drink of rum.

It was a heart-breaking end to one of the great stories of men against the sea, and it was the end of the Flying Enterprise, too. Shortly after Dancy and Carlsen leaped overboard the sea swept over the funnel of the freighter and the ship went down.

Carlsen and Dancy fought it out to the bitter end. The skipper had sworn to bring the Enterprise to port or stay with her until she plunged under. It was not until the vessel was 90 per cent under water that Carlsen gave up.

Then he and Dancy went up the side of the funnel and clung precariously to the top. True to the code of the sea, the skipper was the last man off. Dancy jumped first and for a few heartbeats Carlsen and the Flying Enterprise were alone again. Then the captain jumped.

Turmoil Moves In For Rescue

The Turmoil moved in for the rescue. First it picked up Carlsen and then Dancy. Sailors aboard the U.S. destroyer Willard Keith watched as the two men were expertly picked out of the water. Then the commander of the Keith sent an admiring, two-word radio message crackling to the Turmoil:

"Beautiful work."

Then another pat on the back for the Turmoil came from the British tug Dextrous, standing by:

"Good show, old boy."

'Men Fit, Well—But Exhausted'

Then the air was cleared for a moment and Capt. Dan Parker of the Turmoil got on the radio phone to report to his owners ashore:

"I'm sorry to report she has gone. She got a heavier list. The sea stove in her hatches. When I left her, just the top of the starboard side was above water. I am moving away at all speed I have because I had the good fortune to pick up Captain Carlsen and Mate Dancy.

"Please ascertain if Mrs. Dancy is at Penryn and could come to Falmouth to meet her son. We expect to land between 8 and 9 o'clock (between 3 and 4 p.m. E.S.T.).

I asked the Dextrous to stand by the Flying Enterprise and see her go down."

The Dextrous reported that the Flying Enterprise disappeared beneath the waves at 4.11 p.m. (11.11 a.m. E.S.T.).

Despite the fact that Carlsen had been aboard the listing ship for a fortnight, he was reported to be in good physical condition. The Turmoil messaged the destroyer Keith:

"Men are fit and well although they are quite exhausted. They are resting up. We are proceeding at full speed to Falmouth. Carlsen wishes to pay his respects and appreciation to the Keith, her officers and men."

Attempt To Secure New Towline

The Keith asked if Carlsen wanted to be transferred to the destroyer. The Turmoil replied:

"He does not wish to be transferred now."

Everybody who was watching on nearby ships knew that the end of the Flying Enterprise was near when she lurched over on her side. Water surged into the funnel and poured through the cracked deck. The top of the hull was the only part of the ship visible and then she plunged to the bottom.

The British Navy sent out a helicopter in a desperate attempt to take off the two heroic mariners. But the howling gale forced it to turn back.

With wind and waves rising and the barometer falling, the helpless Enterprise drifted toward the French coast.

Attempts to put aboard a new towline were made impossible by the storm, and the U.S. destroyer Willard Keith radioed:

"Possibility of passing towline next 24 hours doubtful."

Carlsen rigged a rope aboard his ship to help him and Dancy escape into the sea if the Enterprise capsized.

Lifeboats stood by on the English coast. British Royal Air Force planes equipped with lifeboats were on the alert to try to reach the Enterprise, which was 37 miles off the tip of England.

Token Strike Fails To Halt Canal Traffic

ISMAILIA, Egypt, Jan. 10 (AP)—Egyptian workers for the Suez Canal Company at Port Said, point of entry into the canal from the Mediterranean, staged another one-hour token strike today.

The strikes began Monday because the Egyptians want the company to fire a French supervisor who, they said, insulted one of the Egyptians.

Traffic through the canal halted Monday but has been approaching normal since the strikes were reduced Wednesday from all-day affairs to one-hour demonstrations.

A company executive said about half the workers ignored today's strike call and that the walkouts now are not interfering with shipping.

"Skipper Carlsen's reputation got higher an' higher as his ship got lower an' lower.

Cuts Visit Short

NEW YORK, Jan. 10 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill is cutting short his New York visit because bad weather may make flying risky.

His host and friend, financier Bernard Baruch, said today the British statesman will leave by train for Ottawa tonight (11.30 p.m. EST).

Originally Churchill had planned to leave by plane tomorrow (at 2 p.m.).

"The air is bad for flying," the 81-year-old Baruch explained.

Seek Atomic Data

OTTAWA, Jan. 10 (CP)—Canada has informed the United States she would like to obtain all possible information about the atomic bomb and other atomic weapons, External Affairs Minister Pearson said today.

He told a press conference Canada isn't "complaining" about the present situation but that Washington was made aware of her view that exchange of information should be more of a two-way affair.

Wheat To India

OTTAWA, Jan. 10 (CP)—The first assignment of $10,000,000 worth of wheat which Canada is sending to India as a gift under the Colombia Plan, is being loaded at Vancouver, the Trade Department announced today.

The steamship Houston City will transport the No. 4 northern wheat to help relieve "some of the pressing famine problems now facing the people of India," the department said.

Walk Off Job

CHICAGO, Jan. 10 (UP)—More than 7,000 C.I.O. packinghouse workers walked off the job at the huge Armour & Co. meat plant today and their leaders called a strategy meeting to discuss how long the walkout should last.

The walkout followed a series of sporadic work stoppages here and at other major packing centres across the country. Previous walkouts had been limited to a single day or shift.

REPORTS OF PLANE DOWN UNCONFIRMED

Complete mystery veils overnight reports of a plane crashing in flames into the sea near Calvert Island, on the mainland coast, 40 miles north of Cape Scott, Vancouver Island.

An R.C.A.F. Canso conducted a search this morning without success, and was recalled to Vancouver at noon.

"It might even have been a meteor," an airman said. "They have been reported before as falling aircraft."

"We don't know what we are looking for, so the search plane might as well be here," an officer said. "It will be alerted immediately if anything definite is heard."

NONE MISSING

According to a Vancouver airman there is a possibility that an American aircraft might have gone astray between Seattle and Alaska, but the R.C.A.F. was emphatic in saying "we have heard of no aircraft missing between Skagway and San Francisco."

14 Ships, Planes In Pennsylvania Search

The Canadian weathership Stonetown was turning late today to conduct a second sweep of the area where the U.S. freighter Ss. Pennsylvania was abandoned in heavy Pacific seas Wednesday.

At 9.30 this morning the Stonetown came up on the position given by Capt. George Plover before signalling "leaving now" and the weathership has been scouring the seas without result.

Only hope that the 45 men, adrift in lifeboats, are still alive is a report from the U.S. freighter Cignet III that she had a "blip" on her radar screen which indicated an object 16 miles distant.

NO TRACE

A check with the Coast U.S. Coast Guard station at Seattle reveals that the PBM Mariner, which arrived at the search area before daybreak, is headed back for Seattle reporting "search negative."

The distance from shore has made Stonetown's radio telephone inoperative, but a radio report from the vessel to the Department of Transport branch at Point Grey reveals that she reached the last reported position of the freighter today and could find no trace of the ship or the 46-men crew who took to four lifeboats.

The CBC, which picked up the radio report, said it received this message from Capt. J. McMunhele of the Stonetown:

"We reached the area at 9.30 this morning. Throughout the night there were moderate to fresh northwesterly gales. Heavy seas are running at present. The weather is improving slightly with moderating seas. There are some snow flurries.

"There is no sign of the Pennsylvania or her boats and no word from Capt. George Plover since abandoning her.

"Have hopes boats will be able to ride out gale if they managed to clear from vessel.

"Three American planes have been searching and others will be replacing them shortly.

"The American ship Cignet is also in the area conducting a search. Also the Japanese steamer Kamakawa Maru.

"We have not sighted them as they are searching southeast of us."

The Royal Canadian Navy tug Heatherton and the Island Tug and Barge tug Island Sovereign were closing on the search area late today after driving through heavy seas.

In addition to the Cignet and Stonetown, four other vessels were joining the search. The Japanese freighter Kimakawa Maru was in the area.

A Coast Guard B-17 carrying "droppable" life-saving gear took off from the Port Angeles Coast Guard station to join the PBM flying boat. Two air force B-17's were waiting for better flying conditions before taking off from Sand Spit, Queen Charlotte Islands. Two navy P2V's left Whidby Island Naval Air Station, Wash., this morning.

Atmospheric conditions hampered radio communications.

The PBM reported that seas were dropping somewhat but the wind was 35 to 40 knots an hour. The barometer was rising.

The salvage tug Leslie Foss was standing by in Queen Charlotte Sound.

The States Steamship Company, of Portland, Ore., operators of the Pennsylvania, released the crew roster containing 46 names. The Pennsylvania's last message said 45 men were leaving the ship in four lifeboats.

Credit Control Slightly Eased

By BURKE CAHILL, Times Business Editor

Local dealers, hard hit by credit clamps in the past year, were both happy and unhappy at today's announcement from Ottawa that controls will be eased.

News that budget buyers will have 18 months to pay instead of 12 was welcome, but disappointment was expressed over Finance Minister Abbott's statement that down payments and minimum monthly payments would remain unchanged.

IN EFFECT MONDAY

The modifications come into effect Monday next.

Electrical and household appliances dealers, who have been squeezed perhaps hardest of all, pointed out that while bachelor-ridden Ottawa may class their lines as luxury items not so the ordinary housewife. For her money, dealers argued heatedly, they are necessities and under the original controls she was hard pressed to get them.

A greater measure of relief prevailed among the auto dealers. In this group a quick survey of what the curbs had done to business formed the basis for an estimate of one-third jump in used auto sales as a direct result of the extension of payments to 18 months.

"We're very happy about this," said one dealer, "though, of course, we'll be happier still when the whole thing is off."

CONFLICTING VIEWS

It was pointed out by the auto dealers that prices could be expected to move up for used cars as there was considerable pent-up demand. Not so, however, in the field of household appliances. Here it was suggested cautiously that heavy inventory liquidation might tend to push prices downward.

Modifications on restrictions first imposed in October, 1950, include: (1) no longer applicable to pianos and musical instruments; (2) people may rent refrigerators and washing machines for 12 months, against 6 months previously; (3) all goods, except autos and cycles, when rented for use exclusively in a business, trade or profession will no longer be subject to credit curbs.

Finance Minister Abbott, in a 350-word statement outlining the modifications, said the reason for the change is an easing in inflationary pressures. If this trend continues, he said, the restrictions will be relaxed still further.

However, he added that the underlying current of inflation is still strong and restraint in the use of credit is still essential. He could not see clearly what will happen in the future, but if inflation is intensified, rather than eased, "the government would not hesitate to tighten up again."

Though Mr. Abbott made no mention of it, various delegations representing manufacturers of automobiles and electrical appliances conferred with him in the last few months, urging relaxation in restrictions.

Many plants were forced to cut production and lay off employees as a result of reduction in business.

The restrictions still are tougher than in the United States where the down payment on consumer goods, with the exception of automobiles is 15 per cent and time limit for payment 18 months. On automobiles the down payment is one-third and the time limit also 18 months.

Extension of the payments to 18 months, places the restrictions back to where they were before they were tightened in March, 1951.
